REPORT FLINT IN NORWAY

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 30 (AP)—Reports from Norway today said the United States freighter City of Flint, released from a Soviet port to her German captors, had departed from Tromsoe, Norway, late this afternoon.

These reports were the first clue to the whereabouts of the American vessel which was taken to Murmansk, Russia, by a German prize crew following her capture while carrying a miscellaneous cargo to England.

The City of Flint was said to have sailed at 4 p. m. (10 a. m., Boston Time) from Tromsoe, the northern Norwegian port where the captured ship halted briefly on its northward journey to Russia more than a week ago.

Grim Sea Chase on For Prize Freighter

BERLIN, Oct. 30 (AP)—The American freighter City of Flint apparently was the quarry today in a grim game of hide-and-seek somewhere in the North Atlantic, according to the best available information here, but German officialdom was silent.

Unofficial sources said the United States government-owned vessel still was in the hands of a German prize crew and attempting to dodge the British blockade on a run from Murmansk, Russia, to a German port.

But officials said that until the City of Flint docks, "there will be no information about this ship."

The American crew which was taken to the Soviet Russian Arctic port with the City of Flint after its capture in the Atlantic was said probably to be still aboard, but as

Hitler 'Girl Friend' Takes Poison After Row Over Britain

LONDON, Oct. 30 (INS)—Miss Unity Valkyrie Freeman Mitford, beauteous blonde Briton whom Hitler called "the ideal Nordic woman," is in a Munich clinic suffering from an overdose of a sleeping potion taken following a quarrel with the Nazi Fuehrer, the Daily Mail said.

Quoting Paris press reports, the Mail said the 25-year-old daughter of Lord Redesdale argued with Hitler over the attitude of England toward Germany.

After the quarrel she allegedly returned to her hotel in a state of deep depression, according to the newspaper. The next day, it was added, she was found unconscious in her room by a hotel employe and rushed to the Munich hospital.

Early last week, Lady Redesdale received a letter from Count Janos Almassi, an Hungarian friend of the family, stating that the girl was "very ill" and might have to undergo an operation. Telegraph messages for further details from her family brought the reply that she had "substantially improved" and that the operation was believed unnecessary.

But neither the letter nor the wired reply indicated the nature of Miss Freeman-Mitford's illness, according to the family.

Last year, the girl, openly disgusted with Britain, announced she was leaving for Germany to take up German citizenship.

Since she met Hitler in a Munich coffee house in 1934, the Fuehrer reportedly gave her unlimited favor and attentiveness and gossips linked the two romantically as well as politically.

BRITISH ROUT NEW NAZI AIR ATTACK

LONDON, Oct. 30 (INS)—Terror again struck eastern and south-central England today when three or more German bombing and observation planes dropped out of overcast skies and drew fire from Britiish planes and land and sea batteries.

Many thousands of Britons ducked into bomb-proof shelters in London and along the shore from Kent to Yorkshire as the metropolis heard its first air warning in many days.

Sirens also screamed in the Firth of Forth area of Scotland when anti-air raid outposts apparently saw invading German planes.

WARSHIPS FIRE

Gunfire from British warships was heard out in the English Channel southeast of the Kentish coast, but it was not immediately certain whether the shells were hurled at German airplanes, submarines, or surface craft.

Well-informed sources said that the fresh wave of German reconnaissance flights over Scotland and the northeast coast of England

Report Mutiny By Austrians

PARIS, Oct. 30 (INS)—French news agency reports and government-controlled broadcasts today reported mutinies in the ranks of Austrian troops at Vienna, Graz and Klagenfurt.

The soldiers, according to these French advices, complained of general ill-treatment and the continual use of Austrian troops in Poland and on the Western Front, causing numerous deaths.

Drastic methods have been used to put an end to the dissidence, the French broadcasters said, including execution of suspected troops in batches of 10.

War Briefs

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 30 (AP)—Latvia and Germany signed a treaty today completing arrangements for the repatriation of an estimated 65,000 German-Latvians to the Reich. The treaty was negotiated by a German commission. Transfer of the Germans to their homeland already has started.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 30 (AP)—An official of the steamship agency operating the German freighter Havelland declared today the ship still is in the Pacific port of Manzanillo, and denied a report that she had sailed for Mazatlan. United States embassy sources said the U. S. gunboat Erie remains at Manzanillo, and that latest advices to the embassy also place the Havelland there.

LUXEMBOURG, Oct. 30 (AP)—Increased artillery activity was reported today along the Moselle and Saar rivers. Luxembourg border guards who are unarmed, were ordered to wear white helmets to distinguish them from French and German soldiers.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 30 (AP)—Police today confiscated the weekly paper, "Le Rire," for transgressing press neutrality regulations. Le Rire's sale was forbidden because of a caricature whose subject was not announced.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 30 (AP)—Belgian air defense units fired unsuccessfully today on an unidentified foreign plane which flew at high altitude over Namur in central Belgium.

War Diary

59th Day

Behind the Front—Vyacheslav Michaelovich Molotov, 49-year-old premier and foreign commissar of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, today held the key to the all-important question of Russia's real role in the European war, and tomorrow at the extraordinary meeting of the Supreme Council of Soviets he may turn the key for a revelation of Soviet policy. British quarters heard that Molotov may make a bid for peace, on the ground that Chancellor Hitler's designs for German aggrandizement have reached their fulfillment, and that no further reason for war exists.

Diplomatic quarters in London felt that Molotov might suggest that peace should be made now, before it is too late.

Berlin reports held that tomorrow's meeting of the Supreme Soviet will mark the "turning point" in the war.

On the Land—Although official announcements from both Berlin and Paris declared that all was quiet on the front during the night, there was a fresh concentration of Nazi troops, and the French feared that the long-delayed push by the enemy might be undertaken shortly. Supporting this theory was a report that Hitler had taken up "war headquarters" at the Rhine town of Godesberg.

On the Sea, In the Air—Germany remained silent again today as to the whereabouts of the American freighter City of Flint and indicated that no information concerning the "prize of war" would be given out until she docks, probably at a German port. The craft was supposedly playing a game of hide and seek somewhere in the North Atlantic, although no definite word of her whereabouts was available. In the air, batteries rattled along the English coast as three or more planes, believed to have been German, made observation flights across the channel. Seventy survivors of the British ship Malabar, sunk "by enemy action" yesterday, landed at an English port. Five of the crew were reported killed. The admiralty also announced the sinking in the North Sea of the trawlers Lyn and St. Nidan with no loss of life. Norway reported the sinking in the North Sea by a mine, the Norwegian freighter Varangmalm, 30 rescued, three injured.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

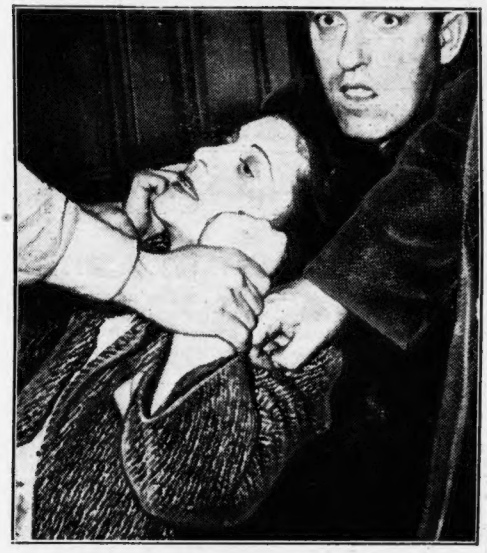
Oct. 30, 1914 (AP)—Russia declares war on Turkey. Germans drive British from Zandvoorde. Lord Fisher becomes British first sea lord.

Portland Infantry Off for Panama

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 30 (AP)—With the blare of martial music and cheers of hundreds of well-wishers, the 5th U. S. Infantry was given a rousing sendoff here today as the last contingent of the famous regiment sailed aboard the army transport St. Mihiel for the Panama anal Zone.

Boy Burglar Suspects Seized in Camp Party

Two Greater Boston boys were arrested today as they were entertaining two Cambridge girls in a lonely Royalston camp, where a state police raid ended what officials termed a two-week career of burglaries and auto larcenies in at least two states.



International News Photo

SUICIDE FOILED—Wearing a topcoat over a nightgown, this girl, who gave her name as Ruth Smith, leaped in front of a New York subway train. Train was flagged to a stop within few feet of her body. Here she is pulled from pit, struggling frantically.

A third youth was taken into custody at his home in Waltham.

Loot, consisting of articles taken in a dozen house breaks and seven stolen automobiles which were later burned and destroyed, may exceed $10,000, state police said.

Arraigned in Concord court, the oldest of the trio, Peter W. Mason, 17, of Jewett st., Newton, son of a night resort operator, was held in $5000 bail on charges of breaking and entering and larceny.

GIRLS ARE RELEASED

The two others, both juveniles, were held in $3000 each. Both girls were released as innocent victims.

Following arraignment, the three boys, subdued and depressed, as they walked in handcuffs, faced a barrage of questions from State Police and police chiefs from surrounding towns. They were to be removed to East Cambridge jail later in the day.

Judge Pierre A. Northrop scheduled their hearing for Nov. 13.

Officers investigating the wanderings of the three boys declared they entered several Greater Boston homes and restaurants, including the Red Coach Grill and Studio restaurant in Wayland, then took food supplies to the Royalston cottage, owned by Charles Pollock of Auburndale.

Pollock visited the place yesterday and reported to the Athol state police barracks that someone had broken in, leaving numerous articles and foodstuffs.

Troopers visited the camp, near the Massachusetts-New Hampshire line, and recovered several sets of stolen plates, a rifle, cartons of cigarettes and auto accessories valued at $1000.

The officers remained hidden near the camp and soon saw an expensive auto drive up, from which two couples alighted. The boys were taken to Athol barracks, then turned over to the state police at Concord, where an investigation of numerous breaks in Wayland, Wellesley, Acton, Fitchburg and other nearby towns is being made.

CAMP USED AS "BASE"

Police said the Royalston camp was used as a "base" for operations of the trio in the western part of the state and in New Hampshire. Police of that state are likewise conducting a probe of at least one destroyed auto, allegedly stolen and abandoned by the youths.

It was also reported by police that the trio apparently made several trips to Worcester and to New York, where they supposedly tried to sell parts from stolen machines.

Youth Held in Attack on Her

WOMAN ACCUSES POLICEMAN'S SON AS HER ATTACKER

Detectives at lineup today heard their lieutenant question the son of a brother officer, an 18-year-old Roxbury youth, concerning attacks on women in that section.

An hour later, Daniel Duggan, 18, of Gore st., Roxbury, was held in $5000 bail today on a charge of attacking a young Roxbury mother.

Duggan pleaded not guilty for further hearing on November 8. His father is attached to the Brighton station.

It was disclosed during the lineup that he was originally taken into custody with two other boys for questioning concerning handbag thefts in the Roxbury Crossing section.

At the same time, a 23-year-old man suspected of molesting women was brought into the Roxbury Crossing station and officers asked the boys to stand with the attack suspect while he was being viewed by victims.

To the surprise of the police, the patrolman's son was pointed out by Mrs. Louise Lenox, 23, of Highland st., Roxbury, as the intruder who broke into her house last May, threatened her with a kitchen knife, then attacked her.

A description written by her at the time matched that of the policeman's son, the investigating officers said. He was immediately questioned concerning three other attempted attacks in Roxbury.

Miss Irene McLaughlin of Batchelder st., Roxbury, also appeared at the lineup in the hope of picking out the man who attacked her last June. She made partial identification of one suspect.

WIFE'S TRYST TOLD TO DIVORCE JUDGE

A former boarder and a wife's girl friend of 10 years' standing today supported a Peabody husband's charges of infidelity against his wife in Salem court.

Leon E. Monnier of Pulaski st., Peabody, declared in asking for a divorce from Mrs. Edith Coleman Monnier of Miami, Fla., that she had run away with another man last November, leaving him to care for their son, Leon 3d, now two years old. He named Randolph A. Newton as corespondent.

Walter Pembroke of Lynn, former boarder in the Monnier home, testified:

SURPRISED COUPLE

"I came home at 11 o'clock one night without making much noise," Pembroke told Judge John V. Phelan.

"There was a faint light burning in the living room, and Mrs. Monnier and Newton rose from the divan. Their clothing was disarranged."

Pembroke did the nonchalant thing under the circumstances, according to his testimony.

"I said, 'Hello,' and went up to my room," he testified.

He added that he had surprised Mrs. Monnier and Newton in affectionate poses on at least two other occasions, when he happened to get home early.

Sydelia Yassee, of Chestnut ave., Jamaica pl., who said she had known Mrs. Monnier for ten years, gave further evidence.

RESERVES DECISION

She told the judge that Mrs. Monnier had confided in her about her alleged affair with Newton, and that she had told her in advance of the couple's plans to elope.

Judge Phelan took the case under advisement.

Mrs. Nita Madison of Brookline st., Lynn, who said she was a December-May bride, when she had only expected to be about a September-May bride, asked for a divorce frmo Lawrence E. Madison of Providence on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

When she was married in October, 1936, her husband, a retired real estate operator, told her he was only 45, but afterward she discovered he was near 63, she told the court.

2 Days of Rain On Way to Hub

A two-day rainstorm, accompanied by high winds, is driving toward Boston from the Virginia Capes, a weather bureau report said, as storm warnings were hoisted from Cape Hatteras to Boston.

As clouds moved in over Boston's sky, the bureau predicted rain and rising temperatures for tonight, with rain tomorrow. Tonight's mercury low would be around 50, it was forecast.

Top storm velocities will probably range between 30 and 35 miles per hour off shore, the bureau reported.

Meanwhile, inland New Hampshire was shivering, as the mercury dropped to 22, one degree above the record low for the date, set 69 years ago.

Ruth Etting Love Suit Reopened

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30 (INS)—The $150,000 stolen love suit brought by Alma Alderman against Ruth Etting, songbird extraordinary, will be reopened in superior court on Tuesday, it was learned here.

Judge Samuel R. Blake has had the case under advisement for many weeks.

The court proposes to entertain arguments from lawyers after which their submission of briefs on all points involved will be asked.

It is the contention of Bernard Cohen, attorney for Miss Etting, who married Myrl Alderman, her one-time accompanist, last December, that the case should be thrown out of court because no proof has been shown that Alderman and the plaintiff were legally married.

Miss Etting became Alderman's wife after he was shot in her Hollywood home Oct. 5, 1938, by her former husband, Col. Martin Moses Snyder.

Nab Ex-Suitor Hiding Under Woman's Bed

Alleged to have been found hiding under the bed of an attractive young Brighton divorcee today, James Wilkins, 21, of Faneuil st, Brighton, was held in $1000 on a breaking and entering charge.

Police said he was a former admirer of the divorcee, dark-haired, 24-year-old Mrs. Betty LeClair of Emerd rd., Brighton.

According to her story, she came home and found Wilkins under the bed, then ran for the janitor's wife, who called police. When officers from the Brighton station arrived, Wilkins was in a closet, trying to light a candle, they said.

They arrested him on Mrs. LeClair's complaint. She claimed he had annoyed her previously and she had forbidden him the house.

Young Wilkins said today he found Mrs. LeClair's door unlocked and walked in. He pleaded not guilty to the breaking and entering charge.

Judge Thomas Connelly continued the case until next Monday.

ADMIRAL BYRD'S SNOW CRUISER IN OHIO CREEK

Accident Delays Trip to Boston

Raise Byrd Cruiser From Ditch in Ohio

LIMA, O., Oct. 30 (AP)—Admiral Byrd's giant snow cruiser, built for an Antarctic expedition but trapped in a small country ditch, was brought to an even keel today and workmen continued their slow job of jacking it to a level from which the monster could move forward onto an adjoining pasture.

The 75,000-pound machine tumbled from a bridge into Pine Run at nearby Gomer Saturday, landing on its side in mud and water after an eight-foot fall. The cruiser was being driven from Chicago to Boston.

While an estimated 50,000 persons jammed into the little village to see the wreck, workmen managed to set the machine upright. The tedious task of raising it gradually on cribbing so that it can move on under its own power was expected to last through today.

The cruiser itself is doing the heavy work of hoisting. Crewmembers said the machine's engines could raise the huge retractable wheels about four feet. Shoring then is placed under the craft's nose, then under the wheels and the process repeated.

The complicated steering mechanism in the cruiser was broken by the impact, said Dr. Thomas Poulter, scientist of Armour Institute in Chicago. The machine was moving about five mils an hour when a wheel struck an abutment on the bridge and the cruiser crashed through the guard rail and into the stream.

Shoots Woman Dead, Wounds 3 After Dream

CORAOPOLIS, Pa., Oct. 30 (AP)—Awakened by a dream, a steel worker early today hacked his wife with an old army sword, slashed two other persons and shot to death a woman, Patrolman Joseph Seara reported.

Seara identified the sword wielder as Christy Larocco. Seara said Larocco, still carrying the bloody sword and a pistol, surrendered without resistance a short time after the tragedy.

The dead woman was Mrs. Libby Baltempo, mother of two and a neighbor of the Laroccos. The injured were Larocco's wife, Rosie, 28, Mario Baltempo, 45, husband of the dead woman, and his daughter, Mary Baltempo, 14.

Seara said Larocco told him:

"I dreamed my wife was sleeping beside Baltempo and I woke up and there she was beside me."

The officer said Larocco got the 36-inch sword, gift of a friend, hacked his wife a dozen times and then took a pistol and broke into the Baltempo home after first trying to force his way into the home of another neighbor.

'Cig' Tax Law Goes On 1940 Ballot

Massachusets voters will have a chance to express themselves on repeal of the two-cent cigarette tax in the 1940 state election.

A petition containing 40,000 signatures from all parts of the state was filed today with the secretary of state by Atty. Samuel Silverman, former Boston corporation counsel, who is acting for a group of tobacco dealers throughout the state.

Brave Police Get Their Man, But—

When a frightened woman telephoned Brighton police early today, reporting a prowler on the roof of a Carol ave. apartment house, Lieut. Edward B. Cain sent three cruising cars to the scene.

The house was surrounded, and officers with drawn guns dashed up the stairs.

They found only an inoffensive appearing gentleman, who was meditatively puffing a cigarette.

"My name is Max Hoffman, and I live downstairs in Suite Seven," police said he explained. "My wife don't like me to smoke in the house—so I came up here to enjoy a little peace and quiet."

DULONG GIRL STILL MISSING

Their search of South End restaurants proving fruitless, state and local police searching for Catherine Dulong, 16-year-old Woburn girl mysteriously missing since Sept. 21, today turned to the task of checking every restaurant in the state.

They were acting on a tip from friends of the girl that she may have sought employment as a waitress. She has run away from home before and stayed away several days at a time—though never so long as in this instance, when her prolonged absence led to the arrest of two men.

Meanwhile, in East Cambridge jail, Dr. Ensang W. Cheng, Chinatown and Reading physician, and Henry J. McCue, 33, Woburn florist, who are held in $10,000 each as suspects in an illegal surgery case, continued to maintain that the girl will be found alive, and that no illegal operation has been performed on her.

Both Mrs. Cheng and Mrs. McCue, mother of one child, steadfastly stood by their husbands.

Opinions of Catherine's friends gave her family new hope that the girl may yet return—perhaps as mysteriously as she left—to clear up the tangled enigma that has resulted from her disappearance.

Search of South End restaurants last night was comprehensive and thorough. Accompanied by Frances Lancelotte, 19, a girl chum of Catherine's, and a voluntary witness in the case, police combed Boston's theater section, but without finding a trace of the vanished girl.

Following the search, Chief Charles R. McCauley of Woburn and State Detective Edward J. Sherlock announced they would question two women witnesses who may, they said, be able to shed more light on details of the missing girl's life.

Joy Ride Costs Soldier, Pal $70

A midnight ride, inspired by alcoholic beverages, today cost a Ft. Devens soldier and a South End garage mechanic fines totalling $70, lacerated tongues and broken noses.

In Concord District Court, Frank L. Follansbee, 21, of Columbus ave., South End, was fined $50 for driving under the influence of liquor and $10 for drunkenness. Pvt. Frank Stuart, 21, of Ft. Devens, was fined $10 for drunkenness. For driving an automobile without authority, Follansbee received a one-year suspended sentence. They pleaded guilty.

Follansbee told the court he met Stuart at Kenmore sq. last night and they had a few drinks.

They decided to head for the suburbs and so they "borrowed" a car from a nearby parking space, he added.

In Concord, Follansbee drove into a tree. The impact broke the noses of both and flying glass lacerated their tongues.

STAGE MOURNS ALICE BRADY

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (A.P.)—Private funeral services will be held today for Alice Brady, stage and screen favorite for a quarter of a century.

Burial will follow in Sleepy Hollow cemetery at Tarrytown, N. Y., for the dark-eyed actress who played one of her greatest film roles—Mrs. O'Leary in "In Old Chicago"—while suffering from the disease that killed her.

ILL MORE THAN YEAR

For more than a year, she had known she was stricken with cancer. Saturday night, she died quietly in her sleep only a few days before her 47th birthday.

At the bedside were her father, William A. Brady, famous Broadway producer, and her stepmother, Actress Grace George. Her son, Donald Crane, also survives.

Miss Brady crossed theatrical footlights against the wishes of her father, who had trained her to become an opera singer. Since 1911, she had gained recognition as a comedienne and skilled dramatic actress in scores of film and stage appearances.

PLAYED STAR ROLES

She was starred in both the silent and sound ears of the screen. She last appeared in "Young Mr. Lincoln." Among stage plays in which she was featured were "Little Women," "The Family Cupboard," "Forever After," "The Bride of the Lamb," "The Thief," "Sour Grapes," and Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra."

An accomplished pianist, Miss Brady was one of the best educated stage figures of her day. She spoke French, Italian and German fluently and still could speak fairly well the Latin she learned as a child in a New Jersey convent.

3 COUNTIES SEEK CUSTODY OF FLIER IN MID-AIR MURDER

MACON, Mo., Oct. 30 (AP)—Three Missouri counties sought custody today of Ernest P. (Larry) Pletch, 29-year-old barnstorming aviator and confessed slayer of his companion in a dramatic mid-air struggle.

Pletch, who told Indiana authorities he fatally shot Carl Bivens, 38-year-old Brookfield, Mo., flying instructor after they quarreled while in a plane over Northeastern Missouri, faced possible charges of first degree murder, kidnaping and airplane theft by Macon, Linn and Shelby counties.

Prosecuting Attorney Fred C. Bollow of Shelby County said a conference was planned by Prosecuting attorneys of the three counties to decide which would prefer charges against the youth.

Bollow expressed his belief Bivens was killed while in the air over Macon County, although his body was found in a thicket near Cherry Box, in Shelby County.

MADE FORCED LANDING

Pletch was arrested when he made a forced landing at Bloomington, Ind., Saturday night, almost at the same time Bivens' body was found. Coroner C. W. Musgrove said the instructor had been shot twice in the head.

The Frankfort, Ind., youth was turned over to Missouri authorities near the Illinois-Indiana state line last night after he had been taken to Indianapolis where he related a story of death in the sky.

Pletch said in his confession he also planned to crash the plane, killing himself, but lost his nerve.

DESCRIBES AIR MURDER

In a signed statement, he related he received "an hour and a half instructions" from Bivens Friday morning, and that he then proposed they "go to Mexico" in the plane Bivens had borrowed.

The confession said:

"Bivens was going to land the plane and 'turn me in.' He was in the front seat of the plane and I was in the rear. Both of us were handling the dual controls. We grappled for a few seconds and I pulled the revolver and fired two shots, both of which hit him in the back of the head.

"Fifteen minutes later I sighted a suitable landing field, and landed. I taxied near a fence, removed Bivens' body, and took off again."

FLYING LOCHINVAR

Pletch was married a month ago at Palmyra, Mo., and Hannibal police detained his wife for questioning but later released her after she said she had not seen her husband for more than 24 hours prior to the slaying and had no knowledge of his plans.

Pletch also was identified as the "Flying Lochinvar" who took a 14-year-old Vernon, Ill., girl on a romantic 5-day flying trip through Missouri and Illinois last summer, begging her to marry him. Releasing her at Charleston, Mo., he later was arrested in Mississippi and charged with stealing the plane from a Frankfort, Ind., owner.

Believe Nazis Ready To Start Big Drive

By KENNETH T. DOWNS

PARIS, Oct. 30 (INS)—Sudden resurgence of German activity on the western front today revived French expectancy that the Reich's masses of more than 1,500,000 men may yet open an offensive this fall.

Today's French war communique revealed:

"All was quiet during the night, we repulsed several raiding parties."

Imminence of a possible German assault was indicated in French reports that German military headquarters have been established at Godesberg, and that Chancellor Hitler will establish his personal base there.

(The London Daily Telegraph today said Hitler already has taken up headquarters at Godesberg.

(The city is on the Rhine river, just south of Cologne. Location of German army headquarters at that point would seem to substantiate, according to the French, Allied convictions that a German drive, when and if it comes, will be directed through Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.)

French reports insist that Chancellor Hitler, eager for a smash, has even made a change in his army high command.

Gen. Wilhelm von Keitel, it was said in Paris, is replacing Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch as Chancellor Hitler's right-hand man. The latter, commander-in-chief of the German armies, will remain only a figurehead because of his reluctance to make an attempt to smach France's Maginot line.

Allied anticipation of a German push persisted even though the weather is colder and rain mixed with snow has been falling for several days, turning no-man's land into a swamp

SEE LITTLE AID BY U. S.

PARIS, Oct. 30 (AP)—A French deputy warned France today against depending too heavily on the United States for war supplies and urged that home industries be organized on an increased production basis.

Henri De Kerillis, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, said in his newspaper L'Epoque that France should not get the idea that "from the moment she can count on American aid she can dispense with fabricating herself immense material destined to pursue the war."

In listing three reasons for not leaning too heavily on United States aid, even if the American arms embargo should be lifted, he declared that French gold reserves would be drained by purchases abroad, there would be delays in setting up in the United States production of French inventions already in manufacture here, and the United States might be rushed to supply Britain's and other customers' needs.

Fight Embargo Bill Amendment Plans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (AP)—Offering the Senate Neutrality Bill to the House on a "take it or leave it" basis, Administration leaders took sharp issue today with demands of arms embargo advocates for a chance to revise the legislation.

The question of parliamentary procedure, important to both sides for tactical reasons, was laid before the House rules committee. It was a skirmish heralding tomorrow's debate in the House.

The Administration forces, confident of duplicating their Senate victory for embargo repeal and a "cash and carry" trade program, wanted to prevent amendments being offered from the floor. They insisted that the House vote on the original Senate bill.

But Rep. Fish (R.) of New York, leader of the anti-repeal bloc, contended that the House had a right to alter the measure as it saw fit. He served notice that he not only would fight in the rules committee for that privilege, but also would seek at least three days of House debate.

CLAIM VICTORY

Although Administration lieutenants claimed victory by at least 30 votes, Fish disputed this statement and estimated the margin for either side at less than 10 votes. Rep. Boland (D.) of Pennsylvania, the Democratic whip, was taking a poll to ascertain the views of all party members.

House consideration of the bill was complicated by the intricate parliamentary situation. The reason was this:

Last summer the House passed its own neutrality bill, containing a modified arms embargo. It would permit the sale of such "implements of war" as airplanes, but would bar sale of arms and ammunition to belligerents. At present, "implements of war" also are banned.

When President Roosevelt called Congress into special session last month, the Senate wrote an entirely new measure. Whenever the two chambers approve varying bills, the usual procedure is appointment of a joint Senate-House committee which seeks a compromise.

WANTS BILL ENACTED

In this instance, the Administration wants the Senate bill enacted. The House technically will be voting on whether to place the legislation before a joint committee.

Leaders of both sides watched for the reaction of a week-end of oratory on the embargo question but many legislators said they thought the time had passed when letters and telegrams from constituents would affect the outcome.

Nazi Hunters Aid Food Supply

BERLIN, Oct. 30 (AP)—Germany mobilized her huntsmen today in an effort to increase the domestic food supply.

Col.-Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, the Reich's hunting master, called on gunners to shoot small game in provinces wrested from Poland and in the vast Tucheler forest of West Prussia, where wild life is reported plentiful.

Hunters are offered their traveling expenses and $2.80 a day, plus two cartridges for every animal or bird they bag for Germany's food reserves.

A BRITISH VIEW OF UNCLE SAM

UNCLE SAM is depicted as Uncle Shylock in this English cartoon, published in 1926. He'd take the "skins" of England and France as pawn for their war debts.

5 KILLED IN FOUR MORE SINKINGS

LONDON, Oct. 30 (INS)—The British steamer Malabar, a vessel of 7976 tons owned by the Brocklebank Line and registered at Liverpool, was sunk "by enemy action" in the Atlantic with a loss of five lives yesterday, according to word received in London today.

A short time later it was announced that the British trawlers Lynx and St. Nidan were sunk in the North sea by "enemy action."

It was believed both crews were saved. Both trawlers were presumed to have been victims of German submarines.

Norway announced the sinking of the 3618-ton Norwegian steamer Varangmalm in the North sea. The crew of 30, including three injured, which landed in England, said the vessel struck a mine.

The manner and exact place of the sinking were not revealed. The five victims presumably were killed by an explosion. Seventy survivors were landed at an unnamed west of England port.

Malabar Sailed From Boston

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (AP)—The 7976-ton freighter Malabar, sunk yesterday off England, was operated by the Cunard White Star Line to the United States, Calcutta and London. On her last voyage she loaded general cargo at Norfolk, Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Halifax.

Nazis Are Repulsed In New British Raid

had prompted Britain to take preparations "ensuring infliction of a high ratio of destruction" on would-be attackers.

(Air raid warnings, which screeched at London this morning, sending thousands scurrying to shelter, were later reported to have been false. Speculation arose as to whether it might be part of German strategy to provoke premature precautions with "finger" flights, then capitalize later on the sense of false security thus created. The air ministry started an investigation.)

Two planes were seen passing over the northeastern English coast shortly before 9 a. m., and then machine gun fire was heard.

British fighting planes chased off two planes which appeared over Berwick-on-Tweed, in southeastern Scotland. These planes, it was believed, swung up the coast from England.

Reports said a single British fighter engaged a German flier in a machine duel over Southeast Scotland.

Sirens were heard in the Firth of Forth area of Scotland this morning and the "all clear" signal sounded half an hour later.

Gunfire later was heard a long distance off. With every air raid warning, British planes leaped into the cloud-y sky and in several cases, it was reported, tackled the invading planes, with unknown results. Firing, at one time continuing for a considerable period was heard far out in the channel off Kent. One large twin-engined plane dived through the clouds along the Kent coast, but it was intercepted by British fighters and driven off to sea again.

Probably because of the planes' appearance over the English and Scottish coasts, air raid warnings were given in parts of London—the first in many days—and the erroneous signals drew the ire of government officials.

FLEE TO SHELTERS

While many thousands sped to shelters, sirens whined in the Westminister, Holborn and Paddington sections of London.

"All clear" was given ten minutes later, while the air ministry announced "the matter is being investigated." Only one siren went off in the central part of London, and working people paid little attention.

The entire personnel of the ministry of information, however, went underground and activities at the ministry were at a standstill for some time.

Instead of ducking into shelter, the people of Berwick stood by the hundreds in the streets and on rooftops watching the planes, one of which was British, flying over the town in a northerly direction.

No air raid warning was given at Berwick, the Scots people's first inkling of the invasion being the roar of airplane motors.

In Kent County thousands of children hastily evacuated schools, taking shelter in only four minutes.

Air raid warnings were sounded in Haddingtonshire, on the Firth of Forth east of Edinburgh, when a German plane was sighted over the county.

Three fighters drove the Nazi craft over the North sea.

After the "all clear" was given to Haddington, the distant sound of gunfire was heard.

Report Ruth Judd Seized, Flees Again

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 30 (AP)—Sheriff Lon Jordan reported today he had received a mysterious tip by phone call saying Winnie Ruth Judd had escaped from soldiers returning her to the Arizona State Hospital from which the trunk murderess escaped last Tuesday.

Jordan said someone called his office before daylight and said they had found Mrs. Judd and were nearing the hospital with her when she jumped from an automobile and disappeared into the dark.

The sheriff did not know the identity of the person calling but he attached enough importance to the report to send deputies to renew the search in the hospital vicinity.

"It may be a hoax," Jordan said, "but we aren't taking any chances. Every tip we have received has come to naught, but we are running down all of them."

Meanwhile Gov. Bob Jones rushed home from a conference in San Francisco to take charge of the investigation into the escape.

Incendiary Fires In Charlestown

Three incendiary rubbish fires, all within an area of two blocks, today endangered six Charlestown families. One blaze was found under the porch of a three-story wood tenement house in Perkins street, another was found an hour later under the same circumstances near a tenement in Main st.

The third fire was discovered burning along the outside wall of a restaurant in Main st.

YIPEE! RODEO'S IN TOWN

A record entry of 200 cowboys and cowgirls—the best that the West has to offer—will compete in the Mammoth Wolrd's Championship Rodeo to be conducted at the Boston Garden for 11 days beginning Wednesday night.

Experts in bronco riding, wild steer riding and wrestling, calf roping, wild cow milking and wild horse racing will clash each day in thrilling championship contests to the accompanying cowland cries of "whoopee" and "yippee."

Leading girl contestants of the nation will speed around the dirt-covered arena of the Garden in special girls' bronco riding events.

More than 600 livestock of snorting, kicking and bucking antics are being brought to Boston for the event which is expected to surpass all previous similar exhibitions seen in the East.

150 OUTLAW HORSES

The livestock will comprise 150 head of outlaw horses, 100 Brahma bulls and hundreds of wild calves, steer and other animals that go to make up a world's championship rodeo.

The contestants will take part in 14 Boston performances—11 evenings and three matinees on Saturday, Sunday and the following Saturday, Nov. 11. Evening performances will begin at 8:30, matinees at 2:30.

Every champion who gained laurels in last fall's rodeo here will return to defend his or her crown, and, with such strong competition in sight, it is expected that many a title will change hands before the 11 days are over.

FOR LOVE OF SPORT

As a further incentive to victory, thousands of dollars in prize money await the winning contestants. All competitors must pay an entrance fee, and there is no stipulated pay but the prize money.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 30—The scheduled hearing of oJseph Demers, Jr., 45, before a United States commissioner on a complaint charging alleged sabotage of torpedoes at the Newport torpedo station, was postponed today until Nov. 13.

Demers, resident of West Warwick, is at liberty in $5000 bail set when he pleaded innocent a week ago before a United States commissioner. Federal authorities said the case would be presented directly to the federal grand jury.

It was understood acid was found mixed with the oil and grease in the gears of the gyroscope apparatus of a torpedo.

Other workers at the station have been absolved. Officials withheld the reasons which impelled any worker to sabotage torpedoes

McGlue Fights $7285 Tax Levy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (AP)—Charles McGlue, of Boston, former chairman of the Democratic state committee in Massachusetts petitioned the tax appeals board today against the Treasury's claim he owed $7285 in 1935 income taxes, penalties and interest.

McGlue said the internal revenue commissioner erroneously had disallowed him tax deductions for bad debts.

McGlue was indicted by a federal grand jury in March for failure to file an income tax for the year 1935 on a gross income of "close to $35,000." He was fined $1000, given a six months' suspended jail sentence, and placed on probation for a year

One of the conditions of the probation was that McGlue file an income tax return for 1935 and either pay, or make arrangements to pay, the tax and any fines or penalties before the first Monday of July.

AWARDS BLACK TOM DAMAGES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (AP) — The German-American Mixed Claims Commission awarded approximately $50,000,000 today to Americans with claims against Germany arising from the Black Tom and Kingsland, N. J., sabotage cases in 1916 and 1917.

The commission, last June 15, found Imperial Germany responsible for the munitions disasters in the New York port area prior to United States entry into the World War.

Today's action made the definite award to the claimants.

Damages of $21,157,227 plus 5 per cent interest, estimated to approximate $50,000,000 in all—was awarded paid to the claimants.

Germany has a special deposit account at the United States Treasury of between $23,000,000 and $26,000,000 to meet the award. The Treasury also holds about $500,000,000, "paper value," in German Republic bonds.

Germany, however, has denied the jurisdiction of the commission.

Browder, Curran May Face Dies Charges

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (INS)—As a result of conflicting testimony, Counsel Rhea Whitley of the Dies committee, today told members that he would consider possibility of prosecuting Earl Browder, secretary of the Communist party, and President Joseph Curran of the National Maritime Union, for false testimony before the committee.

Whitley's sitement came during testimony of William C. McCuiston of Frederick, Maryland, a seaman, who said that he was in and out of the Communist party over a period covering 17 years.

The witness, who declared that he turned against the Communists because they threatened destruction of trade unions, told the committee that he had seen Browder and George Mink, head of the Marine Workers' Industrial Union, in meetings together

CALLED SOVIET AGENT

He asserted that Mink is a Soviet military intelligence agent in this country.

He took direct issue with Browder's statement to the committee that he did not know Mink. McCuiston also disputed testimony of Curran denying connection with certain Communists.

Both representatives Mason (R.) of Illinois and Thomas (R.) of New Jersey asked Whitley to review testimony to determine whether court action should be taken.

McCuistion told the committee that

1—The Maritime Workers Industrial Union—in which Curran admitted membership—was affiliated with an international union directly controlled by Moscow.

2—It is a "well-known fact in Communist party circles" that the Soviet military and naval intelligence gives "special attention" to the marine industry, and Communists are instructed to report all war material shipments.

SAYS BRIDGES 'RED'

3—Mink is "direct representative of the Soviet government" and could "even give orders to Earl Browder."

4—It has been a "common practice" for the party to raise money for maritime unions by creating "fictitious debts" for them to pay.

He said $40,000 was raised in this manner last year, and accused Curran's union of participating.

As the second witness to be called in the committee's inquiry into purported subversive activities in the merchant marine, McCuistion described Harry Bridges, CIO maritime leader on the Pacific coast, as a Communist.

The witnes said he had given information about Bridges to immigration oficials but had refused to testify in the Bridges deportation case, now awaiting final disposition. Asked how he knew that Bridges was a Communist, McCuistion replied:

"At various times I have discussed communism with Harry Bridges and he upbraided me for not coming back into the Communist party."

SLAYS RELATIVES WHO CAST SLURS AT HIS MOTHER

COMANCHE, Tex., Oct. 30 (AP)—Henry P. Haynes, 23, a mild-mannered farmhand, said in a statement today his aged grandmother and an uncle made slurring remarks about his widowed mother, so he slugged them and burned them in their home.

Sheriff Wid Spivey said Haynes admitted he planned to get himself up, too, but the smoke got so bad I ran out."

Haynes was charged with murdering his grandmother, Mrs. Martha McGuire, 79, and her son, J E Haynes, 58.

Last Sunday night Haynes said the uncle and grandmother made the "slurring remarks." Then, he related in his signed statement:

The two men went to bed together and the grandmother retired to her room.

After his uncle went to sleep the youth got out of bed and walked around outside the house "thinking things over."

PICKED UP ROCK

Returning he picked up a large rock used for a door stop and called to his uncle:

"Get up, I want to give you a fair chance. You have never given me and my folks one."

As the elder Haynes crawled out of bed, the boy hurled the heavy rock.

"From then on I was crazy made.

"Something hit me on the neck. I grabbed a shotgun and hit my uncle on the head with the stock. He ran toward grandma's room and I hit him again at the door. He fell down there."

The noise awakened the grandmother and she called:

"What's the matter with you two boys?"

Haynes grabbed an iron poker and hit his grandmother "once or twice" on the head.

The old woman fell beside her son. The youth poured kerosene around the room and tossed a lighted match to it.

As the flames licked around the bodies of his grandmother and uncle, who had given him shelter for three months, the boy decided to die in the fire, but the smoke drove him out.

SEIZED CLOTHING

He seized some clothing and his uncle's suitcase and ran out of the house crying for help.

The fire was roaring. A motorist stopped. Haynes explained his grandmother and uncle were still inside. The motorist rushed here for help, but fire-fighters got there too late. The bodies were charred almost beyond recognition.

Gilder Escapes In Glider Crash

SOUTH DEERFIELD, Oct. 30—Rodman Gilder of New York, Harvard student, escaped without injuries as his glider crashed at the foot of North Sugarloaf Mountain here.

Gilder and several companions selected the North Sugarloaf Mountain location as ideal for gliding and Gilder had made one successful flight before the crash. On his second flight the left wing of his craft struck a tree, causing a spin.

FIVE SCHOOLBOYS KILLED IN EXPLOSION

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., Oct. 30 (AP)—Five schoolboys were killed here by an explosion which Sheriff M. J. Dankowski said was a dynamite blast set off by a rifle bullet.

The splintered stock of a .22 calibre rifle the small boys had borrowed for a hunting trip was found near the crater dug by the blast. The blast left a hole three feet in diameter and 18 inches deep.

Parts of the bodies were scattered 37 yards from the explosion. Only a few tattered pieces of the children's clothing remained. Their mothers were so heartbroken that identification was made only through pieces of clothing.

Flint Prize Quarry In Grim Sea Chase

"passengers" without any responsibility for navigating her.

MILITARY SECRET

Beyond disclosure that the ship had left Murmansk, authorities regarded information concerning her as a military secret and took the view that precise information on when she left or her present whereabouts might invite a British attempt to capture her.

In informed quarters, meanwhile, hints were dropped of an intensified German submarine campaign against British sea commerce.

"Give England a taste of what a blockade means," was a phase uttered in naval circles and appearing in the press.

Territorial Waters Bar to Flint Seizure

LONDON, Oct. 30 (AP)—Naval experts said today the British navy would be handicapped by nature in attempting to intercept the American freighter City of Flint in her trip to a German port.

In the authorized British view, the German prize crew readily could sail her down the coast of Norway to Germany, thus taking advantage of territorial waters to prevent the British from stepping in.

Naval circles disputed German claims of submarine success against Britain's merchant ships, suggesting the Nazi statements were made to lure the British into trying "some spectacular stunt outside naval strategy."

Spokesmen placed total losses of British merchant ships since the start of the war at 221,000 tons, revising upward the figure of 210,021 tons given Saturday. At that time neutral losses were given as 72,000 tons.

(A German high command communique Saturday asserted 115 merchant ships totaling 475,321 tons had been sunk since the start of the war.)

Naval sources said last week 21,000 tons of British merchant ships were lost, a loss offset in part by the capture of 19,500 tons of German shipping.

U. S. Waits Testimony Of Flint's Captain

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (INS)—The American government's future course in the international diplomatic battle over the captured freighter City of Flint hinges largely on the testimony of the vessel's captain and crew, State Department officials indicated today.

The story that Capt. Joseph A. Gainard and his American crew will tell may provide the fuel for further vigorous representations to Soviet Russia by the United States government.

AWAIT NAZI DECISION

Presumably no action is being contemplated by the American government against Germany pending the German prize court proceedings. At that time American officials will make every effort to win the release of the vessel.

Gainard and his crew, officials explained, will be able to clear up the moot point of whether the City of Flint's machinery was disabled.

Their testimony also might serve as the basis for a damage claim against the Soviet if the vessel and its cargo are awarded to the German government by a German maratime prize court.

Several efforts by American officials to contact Gainard were unsuccessful.

The department called attention to the fact that German officials first gave the excuse that lack of adequate sea charts prompted the vessel's prize crew to steer it into Murmansk.

U. S. BLAMES RUSSIA

These conflicting reasons, coupled with the Soviet government's slowness in presenting various facts to American Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt at Moscow, caused the State Department to imply that Russia had committed an unneutral act.

Up to the present moment the State Department has received no official word that the City of Flint had left Murmansk, although press dispatches said the vessel is en route to Germany.

Flint Now 2 Days Out, London Thinks

LONDON, Oct. 30 (INS)—Two days out of Murmansk, Russia, the captured American freighter City of Flint and its German prize crew already may have eluded Britain's naval outposts in northern seas, high quarters admitted today.

Authorities conceded that the secret of the City of Flint's course towards Germany is being well guarded, with only scantiest reports reaching admiralty circles in London.

Some observers thought Britain may make an adroit move by allowing the vessel to be taken into a German port unhindered by the British blockade of the North sea.

This, it was felt, would present Chancellor Hitler with the difficult problem of juggling one of the most torrid of international "hot potatoes" recently thrust into Germany's hands.

Germany's desire to keep on friendly relations with the United States will make it difficult for her to retain the City of Flint, in spite of the Reich's protestations that international law supports her right to seize the merchantman, allegedly the carrier of contraband.

British naval authorities said the Germans were clearly in their rights if they are sending the ship southward within the three-mile limit along Norway's coast, where she is not liable to seizure by the British.

The City of Flint's German crew will be able to sail in neutral waters all the way down the Norwegian coast except at two points, one of which is south of Tromso, where islands will force the boat to put farther out to sea.

Nazi Brutality Cited by British

LONDON, Oct. 30 (INS)—The British ministry of information today issued a white paper listing allegedly documented evidences of brutality within Germany since the Nazi regime came into power.

The statement was issued in answer to German allegations concerning British colonial administration. Germany has repeatedly attacked British colonial methods, particularly in Palestine.

Listing alleged details of brutal treatment meted out to Jews in prison camps, the white paper stated:

"Under the present regime, conditions in Germany and the treatment accorded Germans are reminiscent of the darkest ages in the history of man."

MOTHER IN STIRRING PLEA TO KEEP SONS FROM WAR

WARS ON WAR FEVER

World War veterans, slowly wasting away in federal and state hospitals, are the strongest argument for strict neutrality and the futility of sending American troops to fight Europe's wars, in the opinion of Mrs. Arthur L. Hathorne of 4 Shore rd., Natick.

Mrs Hathorne was one of scores who joined the rapidly-growing National Legion of the Mothers of America yesterday. She had been longing for just such an organization to give public expression to the anxiety of mothers on a large scale.

While she and other mothers were registering, Sentry Posts of seven members were being formed in every section of New England in the most extensive mobilization of American mothers ever witnessed in this country.

"I do not believe," wrote Mrs. Hathorne, "that there is a mother living who would not sacrifice her sons if this country were threatened, or who would not fight side by side with their sons in case of invasion. But why should we permit our American boys to be sent abroad to fight? For what?

"That the public is aroused was shown by that recent meeting on Boston Common to protest against any change in our neutrality law.

"I had two sons when our troops went over in the World War, one 4½ years and one 5 months old. My elder son was killed in an automobile accident six years ago and I don't want my other boy to be sent away to fight for foreign interests.

"We see living reminders of the horrors of the World War. There are a great many cases hidden in institutions that the public do not see.

"These men were once splendid physical types with every right to work and live in peace and happiness. Others of our youth with be slaughtered and crippled, physically and mentally, if compelled to settle Europe's quarrels. It is the duty of the mothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts to take united action and DO IT NOW."

As other mothers and daughters in every section of New England added their names to the nation-wide mobilization of mothers today, Mrs. Agnes Ferrara of 130 West Brookline st., South End, mourned the loss of one son, a World War veteran, and prayed that her surviving son who is 31, would not be sacrificed in another foreign war.

"Our boys must not be sent over there again," sobbed Mrs. Ferrara. "What would they be fighting for if they went? Can anybody answer that question?

"Here is a picture of my boy Francis, in his uniform.

"I watched him wasting every day, but he'd try to cheer me by saying, 'Don't worry, ma. I'm all right.'

"Do you wonder why I don't want to forfeit another son? Do you wonder, why I am eager to join the Legion of Mothers."

Women who may not know how to join the Legion of Mothers can find their answer and inspiration in the following business-like report of Mrs. Elsie Flock Heiderich, of 55 Mozart st., Jamaica Plain, who rounded up seven women friends, organized a Sentry Post, and mailed the roster to Legion of Mothers, P. O. Box 228:

"To Whom it May Concern:

"Following are seven names and addresses of mothers who have sons of war age: Mrs. J. Guiggio, 41 Pershing rd.; Mrs. J. Malloy, 53 Mozart st.; Mrs. L. Gelinas, 47 Forbes st.; Mrs. Galvin, 46 Wyman st.; Mrs. P. Cronin, 54 Mozart st., and Mrs. Sullivan, 52 Mozart st., all of Jamaica Plain; Mrs. Peterson, 93 Center st., and Mrs. Clinton (Gold Star Mother), 668 Parker st., both of Roxbury."

MODEL REPORT

Mrs. Heiderich's report should be taken as a model. It is a shining example of neighborhood enthusiasm and co-operation. First names should be written out, not initialed.

If mothers are too busy to organize Sentry Posts, they can join groups formed by others, but at least can send their own name and address to Box 228 in order to swell the roll.

Remember that the Legion of Mothers is motivated solely by American patriotism and to provide an opportunity for mothers to be heard. No dues are demanded. It is a non-sectarian, non-profit, non-political organization. Unmarried women are as eligible as married women. The only requirement is that women applicants must be American citizens.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Boy, 4, Baby Brother Start Around World

THRILLS AHEAD

The Dutch pilot boat "Yankee" and her crew of 18, including two youngsters and a Canadian school marm, was en route to Haiti today on the first leg of a 36,000 mile, 18-months' voyage to the South Seas.

More than 3000 well-wishers lined the Rocky Neck wharf at Gloucester when Capt. Irving Johnson got under way on the third world voyage he has made in his famous craft. He said he would return to Gloucester on April 27, 1941.

On board was Dr. Nora Bailey of Toronto, Can., who signed on to serve as school teacher to 4-year-old Arthur Cook Johnson, one of the two youngsters on board. The other is his year-old baby brother, Robert Parkin Johnson.

Dr. Bailey is the only other woman on board save Mrs. Johnson, the skipper's wife.

Before the Yankee returns, Capt. Johnson plans to visit the Galapagos, Tahiti, Pago Pago, Samoa, Bali, Sumatra, Dutch East Indies, Singapore, African ports, Rio de Janeiro, Devil's Island and the West Indies.

The Yankee has seen long service. It was built in 1897 for use as a pilot boat. It is equipped with a new Diesel auxiliary and an electric plant which furnishes light, power and refrigeration. The power also will be used to operate a motion picture projection machine, the Yankee's big mainsail serving as the screen.

As mate Capt. Johnson has chosen from among his passengers Robert Leary of Westport, Conn. One of the passengers, Oakes Spaulding of Hartford, will leave the yacht at Panama, but his place will be taken there by Mrs. William J. Donovan of New York, wife of the World War hero, "Wild Bill." She was on board when the Yankee returned from the last voyage.

The other members of the crew are Dr. Raymond Dillon, of Boston, Malcolm Evans, Wakefield; Miss Nora Bailey, Toronto; Robert Low, Cincinnati; Jop Dutilh, Rotterdam, Holland; Charles Sawyer, Jr., Cincinnati; Clinton Davis, Jr., Cape Elizabeth, Me.; Warren Kay, Chester, N. J.; Guilford Tobey, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; John Hayes, Jr., Philadelphia; Kirby Atterbury, Jr., Enfield, Conn., and Earl de Moe Jr., Evanston, Ill.

Hunt Missing Revere Boy

Revere police today sought the whereabouts of Thomas Cuccia, 16-year-old Revere High School student, who disappeared last Wednesday from his home on Winthrop ave., Revere.

His mother, Mrs. Filomena Cuccia, appealed to police and the Boston Evening American to help locate the youth who left school Wednesday afternoon with $2. He was accompanied by a chum, Thomas Goodwin, 16, of Georgia ave., Beachmont.

Cuccia has brown eyes, dark complexion and hair, weighs 145 pounds and is 5 feet 8 inches tall. He wore a white zipper jacket, brown trousers and black shoes.

Ousted Court Employe Dies

Death in the State Hospital for the Insane of John J. Hickey, court house janitor discharged by Sheriff John F. Dowd after 22 years of service, was revealed today.

Hickey died, hospital authorities said, of arteriosclerosis, commonly called hardening of the arteries.

The name of the veteran janitor came into prominence in the Dowd case last Thursday, when Ruben L. Lurie, counsel for the Bar Association, charged before the Supreme Court that Dowd's treatment of Hickey had driven the former janitor insane.

Freighter Here For Scrap Iron

After a narrow escape in the English channel, when a torpedo streaked across her bow and left a phosphorescent trail, the British freighter Barrwhir docked here today to load scrap iron.

And with the batting average of ships carrying scrap metal across the Atlantic what it is the Barrwhir faced even greater danger on her return trip than the menace that sank one of the eight vessels in her convoy.

Of five vessels with cargoes of metal to leave Boston in recent weeks, two were sunk, one got across safely, and two were cleared for neutral ports.

25 MORE CALLED IN LOAN QUIZ

Twenty-five more witnesses are scheduled to appear before the Suffolk County grand jury today in the investigation being conducted by Atty.-Gen. Paul Dever as to the affairs of certain small loan companies allegedly operating in violation of the law.

At least three more court weeks are expected to be consumed in the presentation of the evidence.

Meanwhile, a checkup of income taxes paid by officials of more than 50 small companies is underway. Results will be presented to both federal and state grand juries. The checkup was begun as an outgrowth of current inquiry.

The returns, it was said, fail to include tremendous profits, sometimes as high as 250 per cent per dollar loaned.

One-Pound Baby Fights For Life

GALVESTON, Tex., Oct. 30 (AP)—If tiny William Arthur Harrell, Galveston's one-pound baby, doesn't yell and kick too much in the next few days, doctors say he may live.

But William Arthur, born prematurely Friday night, was yelling his head off and trying to kick the slats out of his incubator.

The boy, so small that the attending physician said he could hide him in his hand, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Allen Harrell, formerly of Monroe, La. His father, 24, is a hotel cook.

Doctors explained to the 23-year-old mother that oxygen is being given the baby through tubes inserted in his tiny nostrils. He is fed a few drops of a modified milk formula

Armed Vt. Farmers Defy 'Rule by Union'

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 30 — Armed with shotguns and pitchforks, Addison County farmers lined up today in a threatened strike against three large New York milk companies.

The irate farmers, who have refused to join the Dairy Farmers' Union, promised to defend their property and their shipments.

The companies likewise posted guards about their plants throughout Addison County and at railroad sidings were glass-lined tank cars were in process of filling.

Grim non-unionists were understood to have received permission from Atty. Gen. Lodge C. Jones to arm for the expected trouble.

CIO HAS MAJORITY

According to the group, CIO has a minority in oganization save in Bridgeport, where union strength was estimated at 50 per cent of the total number of dairymen.

The threat of strike came from CIO chiefs on the refusal of the three companies to jump the price paid for milk from $2.08½ cwt. to $2.15.

Although the armed "vigilantes" for the most part were silent, Henry A. Lane of Charlotte was quite outspoken.

"We don't intend to have organizers coming into this state and telling us where we can sell our milk," he declared.

"We have our own union—COW. We don't want any CIO around here and they will find it out if they start trouble."

FURTHER COMPLICATIONS

Still further complications loomed when members of Vermont Local of the Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers presented a revised hours and wages contract with the stipulation that the terms must be accepted by Thursday at 5 p. m. or a strike would be called.

Presentation of the new demands followed weeks of negotiation with operators over terms offered drivers.

Lynn Valyou, business agent and president of the local union, said the drivers' demands called for a trailog truck wage of 67 cents an hour, regular truck wage of 62 cents, local trucks of 50 cents and a platform wage of 45 cents.

MICKEY ROONEY JUDY GARLAND
They're Wisecrackers Deluxe

HEY, WISECRACKERS, HERE'S YOUR CHANCE

How good are you at wisecracking?

Do you think you can write wise-cracks for Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, now appearing at the Loew's State and Orpheum theaters in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Babes in Arms"?

If so, get busy—because, beginning today for six consecutive days a special picture of Mickey and Judy will be published in the Boston Evening American.

All you have to do is to create wise-cracking conversation for each picture according to the expressions of the youthful stars. In other words, what is Mickey wisecracking to Judy or what is Judy wise-cracking to Mickey?

Forty-six cash prizes amounting to $50 and 35 pairs of guest theater tickets will be awarded to the winning wise-cracks. Winners will be selected by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials.

When you have completed the set of six pictures, mail your entries to the "Babes in Arms" Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

'New England Days' Spurred Sales 60 P. C.

The "New England Days" campaign was even more successful than early optimistic forecasts, a preliminary report of the New England Days committee shows.

The report estimated a boost of about $12,000,000 in chain store purchases.

A 10-day campaign by the committee, designed to increase consumption of New England products, ended Saturday night.

The committee's preliminary statement showed that participating chain store organizations reported advances of as much as 60 per cent in buying orders during the drive.

"When it was considered that chain stores normally spend about $20,000,000 in New England in a 10-day period," the committee stated, "it can be seen that the increased expenditure during New England Days has been an important stimulant to the economic life of the six states."

The committee further pointed out that manufacturers and other retailers, who cooperated in the drive under the auspices of the New England Council, had likewise advanced their buying schedule.

"The $12,000,000 boost in purchases by the chain stores is only part of the total advance," the committee added. "While we have no complete reports as yet on this matter, incomplete reports indicate that several thousand other merchants joined with the chain stores in the campaign and from all indications sharply boosted their buying."

The increase in the chain store section of the drive exceeded last year's New England Days total by about $2,000,000 or in the neighborhood of 15 per cent, the committee pointed out.

CATHOLICS TO PUT ON OWN PLAYS

Catholics should not hesitate to let American theatrical producers know their displeasure with portions of certain current plays, according to the Rev. John L. Bonn, S. J., of Boston College, in an address before the League of Catholic Women in the Copley-Plaza Hotel.

Father Bonn said a movement started in Washington some months ago to give Catholic plays by their own authors had taken root here and was being conducted by an organization known as the Black Friers.

The League of Catholic Women will support a December production by the group.

Staff Writer and World War Flyer

DOWN, DOWN, DOWN he dropped, fighting the stick, with a wing bending upward, a sick feeling in his middle.

Swiftly the ground seemed to be rising as the man sitting there, helpless, battled frantically for control. There came another loud snap, the machine toppled, crashed—and the man seemed to be floating in a sea of black.

When he opened his eyes and looked up it came to him that surely he must be dead. Was it like this when you died? Voila! Then who should care about this dying?

Yes, of a certainty he was dead all-right. He had a Hessian name but he was a Breton, and he had been a gaucho in Argentina and had been through many strange experiences in his stout life—but in life you do not get knocked to sleep and wake up and find your head in a queen's lap.

But Capt. Charles Nungesser, ace of France, was not dreaming. He had tumbled more than 4000 feet with one wing of his Spad ripping away after being riddled in fighting five German Halberstadts, all of which he had driven to earth in one of the World War's most amazing feats.

Falling himself behind his own lines, near a convent, he came to with Queen Marie of Belgium pillowing his head in her lap and wiping blood from his face with a handkerchief. The two had met before, formally and not at all in this manner, when she visited Nungesser's escadrille.

The Belgian queen, visiting the convent, had witnessed the fight in the air, the first one waged by Nungesser, alone, against four Boche, the second by Nungesser against a German who already had shot dead the observer of a British 18L machine and was in a fair way to get the pilot also.

With two nuns she had run to the spot where the French ace then came fluttering down, one wing weakened by gun machine fire and gradually being torn off as he tumbled.

So again Capt. Nungesser— The Platinum Man—went to the hospital for patching. The charmed flyer, who eventually broke nearly every bone in his body, who stopped a dozen bullets in seven months of fighting with the Second Hussars, and 17 more during three years and seven months of fighting in the air!

At the end of the war, because of his wounds and injuries suffered in airplane falls, he wore a disk of platinum in his skull, a right ankle built up with platinum, a left kneecap of platinum, both elbows fortified with the metal, both thighs braced with platinum and both upper arms bolted together with platinum. His palate was gold and he had two solid rows of gold teeth, his own having been shattered.

In one fall alone, only 11 months before he found his head in the lap of a queen on Dec. 4, 1917, he suffered a broken leg, fractured skull and a splintered jaw and had his palate punctured by the control stick.

YES, Capt. Nungesser survived the war, to perish with Capt. Francis Coli, French aerial observer, in their tragic attempt to fly the Atlantic, East to West, in May of 1927.

To Nungesser, 43 German planes were accredited during the World War but the number in his personal diary was 105—the others not being accredited because they fell behind the German lines and were not checked from the ground.

Capt. Nungesser had his daily quarrel with his fiery mechanic, Ponchon, before the ace went up on that epochal day in December, 1917.

Rough, uncouth, slangy and with a vile temper, yet Ponchon hovered over his ace and scolded him like a mother.

This day, Capt. Nungesser was switching from his faithful Baby Nieuport to a Spad and Ponchon did not like it at all.

"Imbecile, insense," raged the mechanic. "Idiot de malissance. You will get keel."

Nungesser waved airily and was away. Little more than 4000 feet the altitude had he gained when he sighted a flight of German Halberstadts roving brazenly not far above his height and behind the allied lines.

Climbing a bit more, the Frenchman hoped to surprise them, but their keen eyes, sweeping the heavens, sighted him and they turned gleefully and raced for this lone ranger of the skies.

The next few minutes were fraught with excitement—and shot with luck for Capt. Nungesser.

With a speedier machine he now attempted a dangerous plan and one he had calculated might outwit the Boche merely because it was unorthodox. So instead of employing the usual tactics, attempting to get over and at the rear of any one enemy ship, Nungesser drove straight ahead, with full motor, spraying bullets at the lead ship of the formation until a collision seemed imminent—then nosing down and diving under the flight.

Now up he shot, half rolled and roared back—the quick maneuver first executed by the Boche ace, Max Immelmann—and as the Spad gun chattered, Nungesser saw the first ship falling, one wing almost ripped away.

He saw something else, too, and his heart leaped as he flung the Spad up again and away from that sudden shambles in the air.

In snappnig around after his surprise vanishing beneath them, all three of the remaining Halberstadts had collided with a crunching of wings, stripping of wires and a rending of fabric.

EVEN above the roaring of the motors Nungesser thought, he said later, that he could hear the yells of the horrified German pilots.

In a tangle of wreckage that then fell apart, the three ships tumbled out of control, and when they struck behind a concrete wall, the grinning French ace, from his seat upstairs, saw one of them burst into flame.

Again the Nungesser eyes swept the sky as he patroled, and within two minutes he sighted an air battle in progress, nearly two miles distant, and he raced over.

As Nungesser arrived at the scene he saw the gunner in the bullet-riddled British 18L slump down in the cockpit, dead, while the pilot veered, zig-zagged and virraged frantically in an effort to shake loose the Albatros from whose guns death was still spitting.

The Frenchman thought to surprise the Boche, but as Nungesser prepared to press the trigger, the Albatros suddenly winged over, reversed and roared toward him.

Quickly the French ace was off on a wing, straightened and shot upward as the Boche turned and came racing back, just below. Nungesser seized up a hand grenade, one of several he always carried for harrassment work, and on a long chance he whistled it down toward the Boche.

It was Nungesser's lucky day. The grenade landed squarely in the cockpit of the German, the Albatros suddenly disintegrated and bits of wood, cloth, metal and wire sprayed in all directions, not to mention fragments of the pilot. It wasn't pretty.

Fifty feet away the British 18L came thrumming up beside Nungesser. The English pilot waved his thanks and plugged on for his field with the dead observer as company.

Nungesser, too, started back for his field in a long dive, but as he dropped he heard a sudden, ominous crack and a quick glance showed him that one of his wings, riddled as he roared toward the four Halberstadts, was collapsing.

Under the pressure of speed through the air, the wing wavered weakly. Would it hold? He still was above 4000 feet and that space between ship and earth appeared terribly far now.

The Spad wouldn't aileron on that side. Nungesser jockeyed the aileron on the other side—up, down, up, down. The shaky wing cracked again and the Spad fell off.

Desperately he worked the stick between his knees. If that wing came loose he was lost. It might even swing over and kill him mercifully before he struck below.

Down, down, down he tumbled—then a shattering blow and blackness. He was the only flyer in the war to wake up with his head in the lap of a queen.

Soft breezes rippled the pampas grass in far-off Argentina and the sun shone hotly from a blue dome when word that Europe was at war reached the ears of the gaucho, strangely blonde in that dark-haired country as he was out riding the range.

THE Argentine cowboy pursed his lips thoughtfully. His beloved France opposed again openly to Germany. He was 22. He must go back. Two weeks later he was on a boat, returning to the homeland and to Paris, city of his birth, on March 15, 1892.

Nungesser enlisted in the Second Hussars as soon as possible after he landed—leaping, as it were, from horse to horse. The Hussars, of course, were cavalry, but like all cavalry which started as such in the World War they were soon unhorsed by modern methods of fighting.

It was while with the Hussars that Nungesser accomplished a feat which aided him, through its bravery, in transferring to the air service. During the battle of the Meuse the Hussars found themselves in a German pincer, with the nearest reinforcements at Laon.

When volunteers were asked to go and summon the reinforcements, Nungesser and two mates took the assignment and sped away in an officer's high-powered car.

They ran the gauntlet through the Germans in the black night until bullets rained around them, wounding all three men, piercing the radiator, crippling the motor and puncturing two tires.

Still they kept on until the motor quit under another rain of German fire, when they abandoned the machine and took to the woods.

Through the woods they threaded until, at dawn, they came to a grade crossing at the same time that they observed a German Mors car approaching along the road. Hastily closing the crossing gates, Nungesser slipped back to cover.

Stopped by the gates, the four German officers in the car were just beginning to alight, intending to raise the gates, when Nungesser and his mates opened fire, killing all four officers.

Then the three Frenchmen stripped the officers of their papers, hauled the bodies aside, turned the car around and sped for Laon, bleeding and weak.

Not long after this madcap exploit, Nungesser was ordered to the Aviation School at Avord for training. On March 22, 1915, he won his pilot's license, but his real career began on April 8, when he was sent to the front and assigned the motherly but irascible Ponchon as mechanic.

In those earlier days of war flying, a pilot's mechanic went along also as his observer, but Ponchon's tongue was stilled, perforce, by the roar of the motors and he was forced to indicate his displeasure only by gestures, of which he had many.

Grenades, small bombs, pistols, rifles, shotguns, steel darts—and even bricks and stones—were carried as armament and munitions by aviators in those days. If one of the wicked darts hit a man squarely atop the head it skewered him to the ground, upright. Later, these darts which were practically lances, were shortened and then were abandoned.

Nungesser and Ponchon were our bombing one night, had dropped bombs on Boche storehouses at Douai and were hiding under a cloud when a searchlight found them and shrapnel began to burst around them.

BOTH were wounded—and as they attempted to flee, Pilot Nungesser felt something banging and discovered that his rudder controls were being fouled and then released, fouled and released.

He managed to skip through some clouds, however, long enough to elude that baleful finger of light which gave the gunners aim. Each time that banging occurred, though, the ship jarred.

Still scowling because of his wound, Ponchon thrust his grimy puss over the side and peered through the darkness high up there. Was that something swinging? He unfastened his belt and stepped out on the lower wing, eased down to his belly and looked under.

"Left magneto is shot away from its bracket—hanging by the wires," he shrilled back at Nungesser.

What if that heavy object, swinging under the wing, should bring its arc out into the propeller? Almost holding his breath, Nungesser kept the ship flying level.

Under Ponchon's weight the wing bent dangerously, but he inched out and inched out toward the aileron. From that ever-ready and mysterious store he kept personally about him he fished a pair of pliers and placed them between his teeth.

Far down he reached, holding to a strut with one hand, attempting to seize that potential death on its vicarious swings. He grabbed and missed, grabbed again—missed—grabbed, and had it. With the pliers he cut the wires and lugged the magneto back along the wing.

They got down all right, but Ponchon said to hell with flying any more. Let this madman here be the fool. Ponchon would stay

ALLIED WAR ON MINES

1. Clean UP Job—As German layers spread their mines along sea lanes. Allied sweepers clean them up . . . a constant war that goes on, as above, when buoys are tossed into the water to mark currently mine-free areas.

2. Mine Sweepers—Unsung heroes of the war are the men who man the mine sweepers . . . men who keep open the sea lanes by removing mines as fast, almost, as they are sown. This photo shows such a fleet of British mine sweepers, operating in the North Sea. The diagram (right) shows how the mine sweeping is done. The ships pull drags through the water, which catch the anchor chains of mines. Then paravanes (a secret device) cuts the chains so that the mines bob to the surface, where they can be destroyed. SEA BOMBS BIG NAVAL MENACE

Like spawning fish, the war vessels of France, Britain and Germany cruise about the seas laying deadly eggs of destruction.

And as fast as one side sows its mine fields, the other side works to locate and destroy the menacing stationary sea bombs.

This is general principle, is how the dangerous work of locating and picking up mines is done.

Mine sweeping proper is usually carried on by converted fishing trawlers—the trawlers of every nation are constructed on designs approved by the Navy which often work in pairs, towing a heavy cable between them, tearing the mines loose from their moorings, so that they can be destroyed by gunfire.

It's not easy work, because the mines are designed to explode, not by contact but by an ingenious system which sets up an electrical impulse whenever anything metallic touches the mine.

Another device in use by all navies is the paravane—a device, shark like in appearance, towed from the forefoot of the vessel—where keel joins stem—at the end of a long cable.

Rudders and elevator planes hold the paravane away from the side of the ship, and at the proper depth, which is the ship's draft. The mine is caught on the cable, and slides down to the paravane, which is equipped with a cutting device. The mine released from its mooring, floats to the surface, where it can be destroyed, or marked with a flag buoy, to be gathered in later.

NIGHT IN CLOUDS!
Aboard American Plane

The aviation industry is an interesting and inspiring example.

During the past month Transcontinental and Western Air Lines reported that passenger-miles were 47 per cent greater than a year ago and were also the highest in the company's history.

A week ago Eastern Air Lines announced that all previous records for the number of passengers carried on one day had been broken on four occasions within a ten-day period.

Revealing similar prosperity, United Air Lines estimated that September and October business was running 37 per cent above that of a year ago, with none of the customary Fall let-down.

The Pan American Airway was equally optimistic. The company revealed that increased travel for both pleasure and commercial purposes had lifted the September figures 100 per cent above those of the corresponding month in 1938.

Many explanations are offered. Some say that Americans are afraid to venture from the North American continent. Others attribute the boom to improved economic conditions.

We prefer to believe that the people of this country are becoming more and more conscious of the wonderful land they possess and are consequently induced to SEE IT.

VERMONT IS HOPEFUL. Conversion of milk into cloth and utilization of non-productive lands for the raising of beef cattle will do much to solve the economic problem of the State, believes Joseph Winterbotham of the Agricultural Industrial Plant Commission.

That is practical common sense. In 1932, the United States imported 22,862,125 pounds of canned beef. Last year, an impressive total of 78,592,092 pounds were brought in. Argentina alone supplied 33,901,697 pounds.

Why couldn't this beef be grown and canned in Vermont and other New England States?

Rayon, unknown 20 years ago, now gives employment to 120,868 men and women and pays them wages totalling $105,644,000.

Radio, developed since the World War, provides jobs for 44,796 workers who earn more than $42,906,000 annually.

There is every reason to believe that the making of cloth from milk will place at least 50,000 ADDITIONAL Americans on payrolls.

ANTIQUE DERBIES, featuring "gasoline buggies" of the late 90's and early part of the present century, interest thousands in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and other cities.

Only the mature person can really appreciate the story of the automobile.

No story is more interesting or inspiring. Thirty-nine years ago only 4192 cars were produced in the United States. Ten years later, in 1910, production jumped to 187,000. By 1920 it had reached 2,227,349. This year it will exceed 4,500,000.

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

HEREWITH a letter from an old friend in the newspaper business which tells a story and, incidentally, sideswipes those of us who are in too much of a hurry to smear our neighbors, in war or the shadow of war. He lives in the country, near New York City.

Dear Ed Hill:

Some of the folks in our town are already getting ants in their pants bout this war. They seem to think we are already in, on the side of England and France.

They are beginning to boycott our little German butcher and grocer, who has been here for nearly 30 years, has raised a fine family, is a member of the school board and an all-around first-class citizen and neighbor.

If I can get a stance in your pulpit for a few minutes, I'd like to tell a true story of the last world war, which, I think, is a passable sermon on that kind of indiscriminate intolerance, hatred and persecution.

DURING the World War I was managing editor of a big-town newspaper. For reasons, I won't use real names. The dealer on the copy desk was Ed Masters, a tall, middle-aged, handsome chap, with guardsman's moustache, brusque, military manner and speech, and a general air of authority and competence.

He was one of the best newspapermen I have ever known, and would have been a great publisher had it not been for old John Barleycorn.

EDWIN C. HILL
Old Friend Bares War Hate

Across the desk sat little Kurt Krafft, German-born, and as good a newspaperman and as good an American as the best of us. Krafft was a mild and apologetic little chap who shrank from Masters' cold, insulting black eye.

For four years they faced each other, Krafft wincing as Masters sat down in the slot and dealt him the toughest, dirtiest copy on the hook. Masters possibly went just a little bit cuckoo before the war ended. Liquored up at night, he would stalk the streets and accost citizens with his unvarying challenge: "Under what flag?"

If the answer didn't please him, and it frequently didn't, he would smack down the offender.

The armistice bulletin came and the boys on the desk tossed everything in the air and left to celebrate. Masters stayed to shape up the paper and get it away. When he later arrived at the club bar, little Krafft, like all the others, was ahead by about eight highballs. Tall, black, formidable, scowling as usual, Masters approached the mob at the bar. And he greeted them as usual. "Under WHAT flag?" he snarled.

LITTLE KRAFFT, five feet three, and built like a katy-did, put down his glass and stepped forward. "You big, fumble-footed tramp," he said, "the war's over. I've been waiting four years to tell you something. You've been getting away with a lot of stuff, and now I'm going to make sure you won't forget it.

"You call yourself a copy-reader, do you? Now get this, you big, ugly lizard: It isn't under WHAT flag! It's under WHICH flag!" Bam!!!! He had to stand on tip-toe to sock Masters on the chin, but he did it nicely.

The snapper to this story is that two years later Masters was in a bad hole and it was little Krafft who saved him. They are buddies, and last spring Masters' daughter married Krafft's son. There's my sermon.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Oct. 30—Mrs. Ruthven, who is the perfect hostess, took me to see a number of the Ann Arbor buildings on the campus of the University of Michigan. The graduate students building is really beautiful and the dormitories we visited were liveable and charming.

Much of the work has been done either by PWA or WPA, and I feel a great pride in what has been accomplished through co-operation with the Federal Government.

WE ARRIVED in Youngstown this morning to find so many things of interest which could be done during the day, that it has been difficult to plan what we would do. Of course, the press conference came first and then I went to see my first steel mill, the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company.

It is a very modern plant and looks extremely efficent. They pointed out to me that the modern machinery made the work for the men lighter than it had been in the old days. They said that though fewer men were needed for certain operations, this did not mean that fewer men were actually used in the mill, because in the finishing processes more labor was required and steel is used in many new ways today.

Youngstown has always been a one industry city and the whole valley is dependent on the steel business for a livlihood. There is a big problem before them at present because their cost of production is higher than it is in places where they have water transportation as well as rail transportation.

FIRST LADY STUDIES STEEL MAKING
Finds Youngstown Facing Serious Problem

By good management they have been able to compete so far, but they feel that, unless a certain canal is built which will give them access to the river and the Great Lakes, this competition may become impossible to meet in the future. It is a serious situation and one which can be duplicated in other areas where there are other interests.

I AM BEGINNING to think that we need not only a National Resources Board, to look into what the nation's resources are and report on them, but a group made up of industrialists and labor leaders to do research work in all these different problems which affect different areas throughout the country.

They should be looked at from the point of view of the eventual development of the country as a whole and planned on a wide basis. I can think of many objections to this plan, among others, the difficulty of making people think on a national instead of a local basis where their personal interests are involved.

I have an idea, however, that this is something which we ought to be thinking about for the future.

TILDEN STILL WINS DESPITE AGE

He played against Johnny Faunce, the young pro at the West Side Tennis Club, and beat him by employing all the tricks he had learned through long experience . . . In the dressing room later Tilden consoled Faunce and said: "You know why you lost, Johnny?" . . . "No, why?" Faunce asked . . . Tilden looked down at the youngster and said: "Because, my boy, you don't understand the fine points of dirty tennis!"

The Germans had all the best of the early September going, although the headlines were being made by action . . . The Allies have been coming fast recently . . . In one local morning journal today the tops of the first six columns of the war-news page were all devoted to anti-Nazi stuff . . . "Nazis Hide Ship News From U. S." was the heading of Column 1 . . . Then came a three-column picture, with a three-column headline: "Nazi Plane Downed in Scotland" . . . "Sen. NOR WAS THAT ALL . . . The British Bureau of Information scored on the same page with an item about Leslie Howard's son having joined the British Navy . . . Then under a Prague dateline: "Nazis Act to Quell Riots" . . . All this is exclusive of a front-page story carrying black headlines telling of Hitler's nephew, "from County Kildare on his mother's side," appearing at Ford Hall as he "played Nazi persecution" under his uncle . . . I guess too, you can score the speech of Dr. Harry F. Ward, president of the American League for Peace and Democracy, at Symphony Hall as a direct hit against Hitler . . . Dr. Ward charged Chairman Martin Dies with inciting a "Holy War" . . . If Hitler has any ambitions against America, a few more Martin Dieses would be a help in thwarting them . . . P. S.—The "dope" from Capitol Hill is that Dies is deeper in the Administration doghouse now than he has been in the past . . . And if what the Administration has been able to do in cementing our neutrality through repeal of the arms embargo is an example of its power now in the Senate, Dies had better have an eye to the future—if he wants Congressional approval of his investigation for another year.

However, the beautiful resort is the source of a very funny story which illustrates two things, namely, that there's a "chin-up" attitude in Bermuda and that Gertrude Lawrence still has a delightful sense of humor . . . The "chin-up" stuff comes from an offer to Miss Lawrence of a desirable estate in the colony at a rental of $30,000—for the season . . . The realtor probably doesn't keep abreast of Broadway news, and was ignorant of Miss Lawrence's current success in "Skylark" . . . But the chuckle comes in Gertrude's reply to the offer . . . The real estate man had quoted the price of $30,000, and as an after-thought had reported two extra inducements in his offer—a chauffeur and a gardener. Gertie cabled back: "Do you mean $30,000 or $3000? . . . If $30,000 is the price please send photograph of chauffeur and gardener."

DAILY STORY — Second Fiddle

I'M A HEARTBROKEN woman, the victim of a "triangle," and no one takes me seriously!

Several years ago I married an amateur botanist. We were married in the winter; bought a cozy little home in the suburbs and settled down to a life of wedded bliss. For three months we were supremely happy.

And then suddenly my husband grew restless. He took to mooning in the basement, evenings. He grew suspiciously eager for the postman's ring in the morning. Frankly I was worried!

I began reading the ads in the mazazines more carefully. Where had I failed as a wife? Where was I at fault? I changed our brand of breakfast coffee. I put Squee-Zeezy toothpaste on the bathroom shelf and gave him a luster-bright smile with his toast and orange juice. I ironed my sheerest undies 'til they shrieked for mercy.

NOTHING seemed to help. He grew moodier by the day. One raw February morning I found out! The postman left, along with the ads and bills, two gloriously colored flower seed catalogues. At last I knew! I, Bob's wife, was to play second fiddle to a delphinium.

Yes—it was delphiniums that year. Tall slender sirens with eyes as blue as Carribean waters. The year after that it was a very special rose that captured his fancy. From March until November, all his spare time is given to his flowers. He slaves over them, talks of them, dreams of them, until I have come almost to hate them—these fragrant lovely rivals of mine.

SUSAN, black eyed and sturdy—Dorothy Perkins, with her saucy pink hair bows—shy self-effacing little Violet—Daisy, pale and demure, and now the enchantress Dahlia, Josephine G., tall, insolent and radiant as the sun.

How long will it last, this parade of charmers who steal my husband from me again and yet again?

True, each winter I have him to myself. His old loves lie buried beneath December snows. But even as I sit by the hearth at his side the old hurt gnaws at my heart. I know that soon will come the new seed catalogues, and in one of these will be the photograph of a new love who will lure him from me once again.

LISTEN, WORLD! — By Elsie Robinson

ONCE A YEAR a friend of mine makes a retreat in a Catholic monastery set high on a quiet hill.

My friend is not a Catholic. He does not profess any religion—but he is wise. He has studied himself and his world—and he knows that "making retreat" is a good and necessary thing for all souls, but particularly sick ones.

We're queer, we humans. Endlessly eager and active about the things that serve the flesh. There's nothing we won't do to help or heal our bodies. Yet we utterly neglect those things upon which all our pleasure and power depend—our MINDS and SPIRITS.

That isn't a "religious statement." It's simple sense. How much does the average person know about the operation of his mind or heart? What things help and heal—what things hurt and hinder? And how much effort do we make to find the things we need?

MY FRIEND makes retreats not as a religious gesture but to find the things he needs. He seeks that quiet communion exactly as he would seek good milk and water, fresh vegetables, fine bread. He goes apart from the world to feed his soul.

Long ago a great king cried to God. He was a powerful king, wealthy, famous, beloved. Yet there were times when his spirit moaned in its hunger, as starving flesh would moan. Times when he wondered what life was all about, and what he could do—just as you're wondering today—to ease his pain. He made his trouble into a song, and in that song he set God's answer.

What was the answer to such need? Something very simple. Just — "BE STILL."

"BE STILL . . . AND KNOW THAT I AM GOD!" Be still . . . and know. Long ago the wise old Church turned that answer into a practical act.

Come away from the world for a while—for a week or a day or even a few hours. Come from the clamor and confusion. Put aside old grief and hate and fear. Empty your mind of its daily worry. Give yourself a chance to rest and wonder—a chance to be still and know.

"BE STILL—AND KNOW." Open your mind to the truth—clear a place for it to enter. What is the truth? The truth about yourself—your world—your fellow man? You need to know the truth.

"BE STILL . . . AND KNOW . . . THAT THERE IS GOD—" And, for a little, rest within His hand.

Carloadings Rise, More Gains Seen

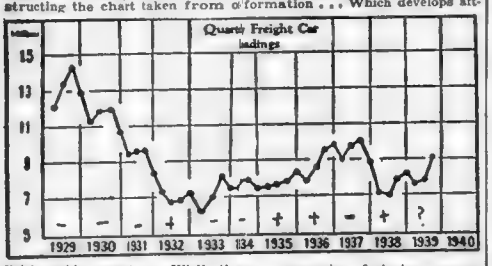
Brightest item in the four quarter trade outlook is the forecast increase in carloadings . . . Authoritative railroad sources expect a good gain over 1938 similar period . . . And, most unusual, an increase over the quarter of this year . . .

CARLOADINGS . . . Gains in the fourth over the third quarter of the year are among the rarities of statistical happenings . . . The are in fact reserved exclusively for periods of exceptional recovery . . . In the accompanying chart stud the record of 1932, 1935, 1936 . . . The figures are for quarter periods and comparisons may be made very easily . . . The Alexander Hamilton Institute is the publisher . . . Using figures in constructing the chart taken from official weekly reports . . . While the forecast fourth quarter increase is made by the Shippers' Advisory Boards . . .

for military precision work, which it is particularly fitted to handle . . . Volume will run into the hundreds of thousands, not millions, of dollars . . . But profit margins are said to be good . . .

• • •

THE MARKET . . . Has wandered into another tight spot . . . This time chartists find lack of price motion has created a "line" formation . . . Which develops after a succession of closing average prices at almost the same level . . . In the present instance industrials have closed in a zone less than 1½ points wide for 11 sessions . . . While rails have actually closed in a zone less than one point wide for the same period . . . It is the most obvious form a stalemate can take . . . And it is far and away the most difficult for prophets to solve . . .



• • •

PROBLEM . . . Of the moment in connection with the "line" formation is almost wholly one of interpretation . . . In the past week prospects of pro-Allied Neutrality legislation have increased . . . That means speeding of preparations to buy needed supplies and materials in the U. S. . . . Occasioning need for ample credit supplies . . . Which could be best assured by further liquidation of foreign holdings . . . When such a force acts against buying based on domestic recovery the result is stalemate . . . That is a "line"

• • •

PERSONAL . . . Observations of the oversigned long ago led to the conclusion that overcoming of seasonal tendencies by the carloadings index was most bullish . . . And the two most important periods were May, June and July and October, November and December . . . In the first holidays interrupt the flow of trade . . . And if losses incurred are quickly recouped a clear indication of inherent strength is given . . . In the second holidays plus a tendency to slacken after fall industrial expansion makes it most difficult for fourth quarter carloadings to expand over the third period . . .

• • •

SO FAR 1939 . . . Has been marked by the ability of carloadings to overcome the May 30 and July 4 letdowns . . . And, it is worth noting, without the benefit of war . . . Now if the usual seasonal decline is avoided there is every reason for optimism . . . Back in 1932 when conditions were just about hopeless and "little things" like the bank holiday were ahead, carloadings told of coming improvement . . . In 1935 when doubts were freely expressed as recovery's future carloadings again made a reliable forecast of further gains . . . And if 1939 witnesses another gain we will look to 1940 as another year of widespread industrial improvement . . .

• • •

NOTEBOOK . . . Followers of domestic rearmament orders point out that there are no profit restrictions on some types . . . Such as the 329 tanks ordered from American Car by the Army . . . As it was a $6,000,000 order conservative estimates are for a 10 per cent profit . . . And, just to prove a name means nothing in this business, General Theaters Equipment is an armament stock . . . It has some fair sized orders

Q AND A BOX

C. A. B., Boston . . . Raw sugar futures are a hot speculation at all times . . . But you're sunk if war ends . . .

G. A. K., Belmont . . . Curtis Wright earnings are flying high . . . And how the Allied flyers like their pursuit planes . . .

J. F. K., Cambridge . . . The World War did make aviation . . . It also gave motors a strong shove ahead . . . And this war may do the same for diesel engines . . .

M. B. B., Swampscott . . . Best of the "peace-proof" issues are those you mention; Sears and Allied Stores . . .

Billions in Earning

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (INS)—A clear profit of over $5,000,000 was earned by the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund during the 1939 fiscal year, the Treasury Department disclosed today.

Stock Market Leaders Lower

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (AP)—Stocks found the going a bit difficult in today's market and leading issues dipped fractionally.

Selling pressure, however, was lacking throughout and, around midday, the ticker tape barely moved.

Dealings were sluggish from the start and no particular selling pressure was in evidence.

Fractionally in arrears the greater part of the time—some eventually came back—were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, American Telephone, Anaconda, International Nickel, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Southern Pacific and Texas Corp.

Posting modest plus signs were United Aircraft, Eastern Airlines, Pennsylvania, Texas Corp., and Eastman Kodak.

Fresh inspiration from the European war was lacking, brokers said, and many traders inclined to the inactive side pending disposition of the neutrality bill in the House. Offerings of American issues from London, while comparatively small, once more were thought to have at least served as a market brake. Business news remained as a comforting factor, but observers were unwilling to make strong predictions as to the early part of next year.

Bonds and commodities were a shade uneven. Securities in foreign markets were without definite trends.

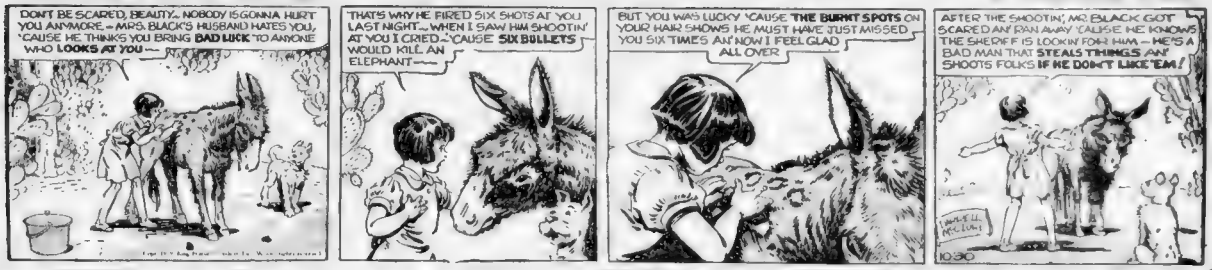
LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY



A Charmed Life

NUNGESSER 'PLATINUM MAN' OF RAIDERS

on the ground, where nature had given him birth and where she intended him to stay.

Not long afterward, Nungesser's command was transferred to Nancy, on the Malzeville Plateau, and here the Frenchman had the extreme pleasure of besting the famed and feared Max Immelmann, German ace.

Nungesser was up alone when he sighted a flight of five Albatroses ,the leader of which was the famous Immelmann, flying with a gunner.

The Albatroses were apparently intent on a French obeservation balloon, as they appeared not to notice the Frenchman, high above them and to the rear.

As French archies began to burst about the Boche machines, Immelmann suddenly departed the formation as if intending to pique down on the balloon himself. The other Albatroses separated in an attempt to scatter the archie fire.

Down shot Nungesser in his Voisin, intercepting the surprised Immelmann, but the German gunner let loose a late blast on the Frenchman and they exchanged shots.

For some reason, and despite the fact that Nungesser's Voisin was plain'y a French machine, the French battery below kept popping and it was a little disconcerting to Nungesser, not to mention the Boche.

Back through the barrage and the German's shots Nungesser dived—and a bullet pierced his helmet and creased his scalp. With his head stinging as if from the punchings of a thousand bees, the Frenchman poured lead into the Immelmann Albatros. The Boche's motor stopped and Immelmann, nosing down, dived with a dead stick.

TOO far into the allied lines was he, however, and the Albatros made a crash landing in No Man's Land. From his height, Nungesser watched two tiny dots leave the plane and moye zig-zag in the direction of the German trenches .

Then one of the dots merged with the ground and moved no longer. The other continued to proceed. It disappeared, like an ant in a thin fissure, into the scar that marked the first line.

When Nungesser returned to the field he learned he had shot down the great Immelman and his gunner; that the gunner had been killed by rifle fire while fleeing for his trenches but that Immelman had made it and escaped.

Not long after that Nungesser was placed under arrest for stunting a new Caproni plane over the city of Nancy, where military authorities had forbidden such antics.

Truly—until he was released—Nungesser was an ace in the hole.

The fall Nungesser suffered in January, 1917, was while testing a new type Ponnier plane with a 120-horsepower Clerget motor, the machine going into a spin out of which he could not pull it.

This fall was responsible for the first of his platinum plates, his gold palate and his blazing gold set of teeth. Thereafter, also, he limped through life.

The fall which practically landed him in Queen Marie's lap added more platinum, but no gold.

But between his hospital tripe he continued to knock down German machines until finally word

FLIER NUNGESSER
'Platinum Man'

trickled into the French lines that the German high command had placed a price of 50,000 gold marks on his head, this sum to be paid any flyer who brought about Nungesser's death or capture.

The news but spurred him on the more, because it buffed up his pride and made, somewhat, a personal thing of the war—a conflict between himself and the disturbed German commanders.

So he went on to pile up his official score of 43 Boche planes, most of them shot down while he was out on patrol alone, like his famed countryman, Georges Guynemer, and the great American, Raoul Lufbery

Decorations came to him in the form of medals, crosses, stars and 28 palms. He was an idol of France.

After the war the government showed a further appreciation of the service he had given his country by making him head of the greatest school of flying instruction in France, the government-sponsored school at Orly.

In 1921 Nungesser made a tour of the United States and on the tour met and fell in love with Miss Consuelo Hatmaker, New York and Palm Beach society girl.

They were married June 28, 1923, in Paris. The marriage did not last, however, and in September, 1926, Consuelo divorced the French ace on a charge of abandonment.

CAPT. Nungesser explained the whole thing later He still loved his former wife, he said, but they had broken because he insisted on working, despite her money, and she insisted upon his retiring from aviation and devoting himself wholly to her.

A nice life for a gaucho and an ace:

Consuelo was not at Le Bourget Field, outside Paris, on Sunday morning, May 8, 1927, when Nungesser and Capt. Coli took off at 5:18 in the French dawn in an attempt to fly from Paris to New York in their plane, The White Bird.

From time to time came reports that fragments of a plane and skeletons had been found in various locations of Labrador and Canada, but all were discredited.

Perhaps, for all time, their fate will remain a mystery.

Another thrilling chapter in this series will be published in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Mrs. Conway's Rites Tuesday

She has been a resident of Roxbury and Jamaica Plain for many years. Surviving are a daughter, Miss Mary V. Conway, teacher at the Frank V. Thompson School, Dorchester, and Jack Conway sports editor of The Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30 (AP) Fred H Moody, Jr., whose former wife, Helen Wills Moody, was married Saturday to Aidan Roark, wealthy film writer and polo player, disclosed today he was married three weeks ago to the former Anna Lamarre of Chicago.

"We drove over to Austin, Nev., three weeks ago and were married while I was working at Tahoe," the socially-prominent Moody said. Moody is 38, his bride 28.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Oct. 30 (AP) —A boat ride on Lake Mead and a visit to the Grand Canyon comprise the honeymoon plans of Helen Wills Moody, the tennis star, and Aidan Roark, her polo-playing husband.

They were married here Saturday afternoon after a trip from Hollywood, where Roark is a film writer.

Bridges to Seek One Thanksgiving Day

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (AP)—Senator Bridges (R.) of New Hampshire, is going to ask Congress "to end all this confusion about Thanksgiving Day created by President Roosevelt."

He is drafting a bill, he said today, to make the last Thursday of November "a public holiday that is standardized throughout the United States."

Pope Consecrates 2 American Bishops

VATICAN, Oct. 30 (AP)—Two American bishops were among 12 consecrated yesterday by Pope Pius XII in St. Peters Basilica. They were the Most Rev. William F. O'Shea of New York, who became bishop of Keijo, Korea, and the Most Rev. Louis L. Morrow, 46, of Weatherford, Tex., who became bishop of Krishnagar, India.

BILL "BOJANGLES" ROBINSON, gold derby, plumes and all, comes here in Michael Todd's "Hot Mikado" a week from tonight. The place is the Boston Opera House, but the event should be the hottest jam session on record. Robinson's performance has been one of the highlights of New York's theatrical season, the show's run being divided between Broadway and the World's Fair.

Billiards Champ At South Station

Take a cue from Film Reporter Pete Smith's newest MGM short now unreeling on South Station Theater screen. Titled just that — "Take a Cue" — it presents Charlie Peterson, world's champion billiardist, in a brilliant exhibition of three cushion play.

'In Name Only' Tops Boston's Film Bill

RKO Boston's current screen features are "In Name Only," with Carole Lombard, Cary Grant and Kay Francis forming the absorbing triangle, and "The Man They Could Not Hang," with Norma Gray. This program will continue through Thursday.

'Intermezzo' Held at Keith's

"Intermezzo, a Love Story," with two proven stars and a lovely Swedish importation in a triangular romance, will continue a second week on Keith Memorial screen, in company with a new second feature. The latter is "Three Sons," with Edward Ellis, William Gargan and Kent Taylor.

Leslie Howard and Edna Best, as a world-famous violinist and his genuinely beloved wife, are given strong competition, romantically and professionally, by Ingrid Bergman. Howard, returned to his idyllically happy household, discovers he cannot resist the charm of his young daughter's lovely piano-teacher, Miss Bergman.

Fans will find Miss Bergman's charms equally irresistible. Her talent is unquestionable.

"Three Sons," adapted from the novel, "Sweepings," is the story of poor little rich boys and girls and their escape from boredom in riotous living. The picture has an early Chicago locale, in the early '70s.

'The Royal Family' Comes To Copley's Stage Tonight

The week's sole opening is tonight's at the Copley—the revival of the successful George S. Kaufman-Edna Ferber stage hit, "The Royal Family," by the Alan Gray Holmes' new stock company.

Featured players who have been added to the all-New York cast are Rose Morison, Gene Webber and Casey Walters. Erford Gage, youthful and gifted actor-director, is in charge of the production.

When Boston first saw "The Royal Family," which has a strong flavor of Barrymore, its two starring members were Haidee Wright and Otto Kruger.

The playwrighting team of Kaufman and Ferber were also responsible for Winthrop Ames' production of "Minick," which had a healthy Broadway run.

Rare Treats For Playgoers

By PEGGY DOYLE

"Abe Lincoln in Illinois," which won for its author, Robert Emmet Sherwood, his second Pulitzer Prize, and for its title-playing star, Raymond Massey, unstinted praise for an inspired performance, continues through Saturday at the Boston Opera House.

In the play's 12 scenes, Mr. Sherwood covers Lincoln's 30 years in New Salem until February 11, 1861, when, as the newly elected President of the United States, Abraham Lincoln leaves Springfield, Ill., for the White House.

It is a great play, Mr. Sherwood's finest, and the usual terms used for lauding hit productions seem unworthy of it.

"Outward Bound," the Sutton Vane play, which was revived in New York for eight weeks and remained the season, goes into its final week tonight at the Plymouth.

Laurette Taylor, for her brilliant portrayal of Mrs. Midget, the saintly scrubwoman, received the Robert Porterfield Barter Theater award, the distinguished awarding committee pronouncing hers "the outstanding performance given by an American actor during the 1938-39 New York season."

Florence Reed's Mrs. Clivedon-Banks, a less kindly passenger on the play's ghostly ship that is bound for nowhere, has also been enthusiastically hailed for a star performance.

"Outward Bound" is the strange tale of a cargo of persons headed for they know not where. It is a deeply moving and tender story.

• • •

Laurence Schwab's "Nice Goin'" at the Shubert is also in its final week.

It has Mary Martin, Lee Dixon, Pert Kelton and Bert Wheeler singing some of Rainger and Robin's best songs. They dance, too. Dixon, who's the best since Jack Donahue, is scheduled to do some additional dancing this week and this should be all to the good.

• • •

"Kiss the Boys Goodbye," which Clare Boothe insists "was meant to be a political allegory about Fascism in America," believe it or not, will tenant the Wilbur another week.

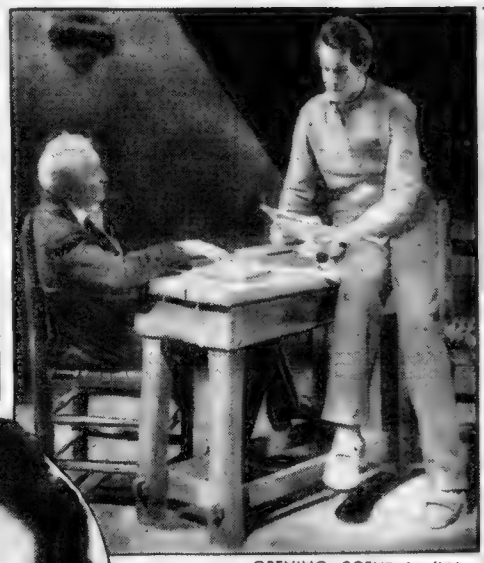
ENID MARKEY is featured in Dwight Deere Wiman's "Mornings at Seven," opening a week from tonight at the Plymouth.



OPENING SCENE in "Abe Lincoln In Illinois" is Mentor Graham's cabin. Play is in its final week at Boston Opera House.

NORMANDIE PROGRAM

Irving Berlin's musical film, "Second Fiddle," co-starring Tyrone Power and Alice Faye, and "Career," with Edward Ellis and Anne Shirley, may be seen at the Normandie.

'Very Warm for May' Tickets on Sale

Seats for Max Gordon's production of the new Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein musical comedy, "Very Warm for May," go on sale next Monday night in advance of today at the Colonial Box Office. The play, which the Washington [illegible] announced, begins a week's engagement here at the Colonial [illegible] premiere.

Oriental Dancer Globe Headliner

Oriental dancer Tirzah and Boston's own Frances M Fox are sharing the spotlight in this week's burlesque revue at the Globe New York World's Fair amusement patrons indicated at the box office that the former was one of their favorite entertainers. The latter is too well known in the Hub to need an introduction.

Tirzah

Remaining over for a second week is Lillian Dixon, as are Sandra Scott and Lee Marmer. Other headliner features of the week's show are the dancing teams of Don and Louise and The Richards.

Mandy Kay, of course, is the chief comic. Assisting him ably are Al Pharr, Lee Golden, Harry Ryan, Chet Adland and that unrivalled boob comedian, Irving Benson.

The Globe's burlesque shows start daily at noon, 2:30 and 8:30 p. m. The film program, continuous from 9 a. m. on, includes "City Streets," with Leo Carillo and Edith Fellows; "Under Suspicion," with Jack Holt, and "Cash and Carry," featuring the Three Stooges.

Week-End Bills at Weymouth's Drive-In

Weymouth's Drive-In Theater will operate on week-ends only until further notice, commencing this week. "Abraham Lincoln," with Walter Huston, Una Merkel and Ian Keith, will be the feature picture for Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Additional features will be "Magic Bean," an Oswald cartoon; "Phoney Boy," "Head On" and the latest newsreels.

BEACON'S FILMS

"Hotel Imperial," co-starring Ray Milland and Isa Miranda and featuring Gene Lockhart, Reginald Owen and J. Carrol Naish, and "Hell's Kitchen," with the "Dead End" Kids and Margaret Lindsay, are now showing on Beacon screen.

ZORINA, seen here last season in "I Married An Angel," and Eddie Albert, who helped make "The Boys From Syracuse" memorable, are co-starred in "On Your Toes," due Thursday at the Paramount and Fenway.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30—You won't find a more serious band of women anywhere than our Hollywood girls who are taking a course in Red Cross training at the West Side Tennis Club.

Three times a week Kay Francis, Myrna Loy, Miriam Hopkins, Claudette Colbert and the wives of several producers and directors, pack up their troubles in their little nursing kits and take instruction in practical first aid.

Kay Francis, who is the most advanced pupil, gave her first hypodermic a couple of days ago and the expert way she did the job has been the chief topic of conversation in movie circles. Myrna and Miriam, who have been busy at the studios, are still wrapping bandages, but it won't be long now before they are in Kay's class.

M-G-M can feel well pleased if they are able to persuade J. Stuart Blackton to serve in an advisory capacity on their Thomas Edison films. No one, outside the Edison family, knows the intimate details about the great inventor better than Commodore Blackton. He has in his possession now the first 12 Vitascope pictures ever made (movies, to you) and he was the first producer ever to work directly with the man who invented the flickers.

Diane Rowland Old Howard Star

"Follies of the Day," the Old Howard's current burlesque revue, promises to be its merriest and most lavish to date.

Diane Rowland

Starring Diane Rowland, who is rated one of the most expert dancers on the burlesque circuit, the show has a cast of 60 featuring Tullah and Miy, native Egyptian dancing team that pleased World's Fair customers and, before that, Continental nightclubbers, with their "Visions of the Harem" and "Jungle" dance creations.

Max Fuhrman and Harry Evanson are the co-starring comics. Others importantly spotted are Princess Aloha, native Hawaiian; the Three Arnolds; the Edward Sisters, Octaroon dancers; the Three Bishop Brothers, comedians; Alma Maiben, Dot Darling Bongard and Dooley; Leona and Edith, Roberta Forrest and Herbert Barris, master of ceremonies.

"Room Service," with the Marx Brothers, and "Mr. Doodle Kicks Off," with Joe Fenner and June Travis, make up the screen program.

Old Howard stage shows start daily at noon, 2:30 and 8:30 p. m. On Friday, there is a special midnight show, beginning at 11:30.

Meredith Play Opens Christmas

The world premiere of "Young Man With a Horn," derived from Dorothy Baker's story of Bix Biederbeck and starring Burgess Meredith, will take place Christmas night at the Colonial Theater, according to the latest word from Broadway. The New York opening is set for January 8.

Margaret Rawlings is now being mentioned for the role originally slated for Margaret Sullavan. Louis Armstrong and some members of his band are also headed for the cast.

Jed Harrisis to direct, according to present plans and there is a chance that, following the Broadway run, Harris and Lewis Milestone might make a movie of the play for United Artists.

Girl Bouncer On Gayety Bill

Lois DeFee, the six feet four nightclub bouncer who became popular at the World's Fair as "Queen of the Amazons," is displaying her Junoesque charms on the Gayety stage this week.

Lois DeFee

The DeFee, who is black haired, blue-eyed and weighs 184 pounds (minus two wedding rings and her tiger skin), allows as how "this will be an educational show." For you and your edification, she explains that it is aimed to demonstrate how the feminine form divine has become even more so since the days of the original Amazons. She believes that this hub of culture is the ideal place for her demonstration.

Miss DeFee, who was the world's first girl bouncer several years ago at Manhattan's Dizzy Club, subsequently went to Hollywood to play her real-life role on the screen. The casting director found her too true to be good.

THE DIAMOND RING which Phillis Childs has had tucked away among her treasures for some weeks, made its first public appearance on her finger yesterday at the party given to announce her engagement to William Nye Swift, 2d, Harvard senior . . .

The affair was a cocktail party given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Stevens Childs of Lexington . . . Out of town guests included Virginia Childs of Detroit, Miss Lear Eddy of New York City, William B. Durant of Philadelphia whom Phyllis and Bill have invited to be best man at their wedding next June; Mrs. Nathaniel Holmes of New York City, mother of the prospective bridegroom, and his sister, Mrs. Carleton Parker of Williamstown . . .

The party was a double celebration, for toasts were also proposed in honor of Phyllis' cousin, Virginia Childs, and Carleton Klinck who will be married Saturday in Lexington . . .

SHOULD YOU REST AFTER HEAVY MEAL? | IS TOO MUCH SALT HARMFUL?

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY

Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

Should you lie down or take a walk after eating a heavy meal?

The main job of the body after a meal is to digest the meal. For that purpose it must provide digestive juices, which are derived from the blood supply. In active exercise part of the blood supply is diverted to the muscles. For that reason it is generally considered better to stay quiet for a time and allow the digestive organs to get the larger part of the body's blood supply.

Salt Changes the Water Balance

Will too much salt hurt you? How much is too much?

It is generally agreed that about one-half of an ounce a day of salt will meet all the body needs. In order to prevent body disturbance, the system draws on the water supply to keep the daily requirement of salt diluted to a definite percentage. That is why excessive salt may actually produce obesity by filling the tissues with water. So long as the body can provide enough water for the dilution, there is no direct harm on the tissues.

Use Plenty of Fruits and Vegetables

What foods can I substitute for milk?

The basic reason for advising the use of a quart of milk a day is that in that quart of milk there is about 1-30 ounce of calcium, which is considered the optimum requirement of the human body per day.

If, therefore, one cannot use milk, another source of calcium must be considered; fruits and vegetables are particularly good sources of this material.

Milk, of course, contains other important nutrients, but, again, most of these elements, with the exception of its protein, are also present in fruits and vegetables.

VITAMIN B is the anti-neuritic vitamin, because its omission from the diet results in a multiple nerve inflammation or "polyneuritis" associated with beri-beri disease. This vitamin is obtained by eating vegetables, fruits and whole cereals, such as graham flour, corn meal and bran.

You Can Be Beautiful

Cachet for Your Lips

By ARLINE GOULD

IF YOU'VE loved some of the fuchsia-tinged lipsticks . . . and are loath to give up the delicacy they lend your skin . . . and if, still, you want the ringing red tone which is very, very new . . . compromise.

There's a new lipstick and matching rouge called "cachet red" which, remarkably enough, swings into line with the clarion reds, yet keeps an undertone of fuchsia. It is a rose red.

We like the texture of this lipstick, which comes in a gay plastic case of so-French colors, a military red and blue. The texture is, at once, softening and light, yet with a dryness that simply knows not what it means to smear.

Don't misunderstand us . . . it isn't "drying" . . . and it goes on in the thinnest possible film, silken and firm-looking.

As an accent to black, cerise Balenciago red, grey, stone or pigeon blue, this is a lip and cheek tint you'll simply adore.

For this week only, the maker of this lipstick, a name with which to conjure in the beauty world, is in a Boston shop for consultation, and she can show you the way to choosing the perfect new color for your autumn glory. We think this "cachet red" may be the one you want, though if you wear a lot of green and brown, there is a thrilling new "brique" tone, too.

To learn about the cachet red or brique make-up, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Smart Set Fashions

IT'S GOING to be a great day in Boston, this Wednesday . . . when innumerable style and charity leaders put forth their best efforts in a sale of Chinese costume jewelry, with proceeds going to China. Perhaps you've heard about these wonderful replicas of Chinese masterpieces . . . some of them adapted from jade collections whose value steps up into a million or so dollars.

Perhaps you've heard that Tallulah Bankhead bought a striking swag of heavy gold chains, which is caught on either shoulder with a brooch of jade green dangling a myriad of gold plaques marked with Chinese symbols, and that she says its bringing her good luck. We know any of these pieces will bring you wonderful fashion luck, because they make a costume of the simplest outfit.

And if you have a yen for long, dangling eartrings, here are some that will leave you breathless with the desire for possession. You may have them in sets or singly, and they are not expensive, though they certainly look it.

Little temple bells ring on one set of earrings we show, and the brooch has dangling "good luck" charms. The other ear rings are also exotic, and the brooch features a pot of peonies of plastic jade, symbol of prosperity. To learn the name of the Boston shop which is staging this charity sale, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write.

Thousands Have Followed This New Way To Add Flattering Extra Pounds, New Strength, Energy and Vigor!

Many who go around looking skinny, scrawny, pale and rundown needn't be that way at all. Often conditions like these are caused simply because their ordinary every day food is lacking in certain nutritional elements that act as important aids in digestion and assimilation. Without them, digestion is incomplete and much of the nourishment that food can provide is wasted. Kelpamalt Tablets are a sure, quick way of getting an adequate supply of these precious substances. They contain—in the dosage recommended—a full daily ration of iron and copper—needed for rich, red, strength-building blood, calcium and phosphorous for bone building and tooth building; Vitamin B for improved digestion, improved appetite and healthy nerves; and last but not least important, natural iodine, which, doctors say, regulates metabolism and protects against goitre. These elements not only help you to completely utilize your food, but are important aids in the strength and flesh building processes.

New Toasted Bread Ways

By MARTHA LEE

"To toast," says Noah Webster, "is to dry and brown by the heat of the fire." But that's not the half of it. Toasting releases unsuspected flavors; produces smart shades of beige and brown; effects crispy exteriors; gives rebirth to left-overs.

A slightly withered piece of cake? Toast it, serve it with sauce. A yesterday's muffin? Toast it, spread it with jam! Cocoanut? Toast it for new color and flavor! Cereal gamp? Toast it! Bread itself, commonest occupant of the toaster is an "of course" — with dozens of variations.

TOAST DE LUXE

Toast slices of the following, serve with jelly and hot coffee

BACON BRAN CORN BREAD

1 egg.
¼ cup sugar.
½ cup all-bran.
1 cup cornmeal.
1 cup milk
1 cup flour.
½ tsp. salt.
1 tsp. baking powder.

Beat egg and sugar together. Add all-bran, cornmeal and milk. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture and combine well. Pour batter into greased pan and sprinkle diced bacon over top. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) about 20 minutes. If crust and bacon do not brown sufficiently place the bread under broiler for five minutes. Makes eight servings.

FRENCH TOAST
("Fried Bread")

Allow 1 egg, ½ cup milk and ¼ tsp. salt for 3 slices of bread. Beat the egg slightly in a deep plate; stir in the milk and salt. Heat 2 tablespoons cooking oil in a frying pan. Dip slices of bread in the egg and milk mixture; cook in the hot cooking oil until brown on one side; turn with a spatula.

ARABIAN TOAST

1 pkg. dates
½ cup chopped nutmeats
1 tbsp. orange juice
1 to 2 tbsp. melted butter
1-3 cup shredded cocoanut, toasted and chopped.

Pit the dates and stuff them with coarsely chopped nut meats which have been moistened with orange juice. Place stuffed dates in a shallow buttered glass or enamel baking dish. Add the melted butter and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 15 minutes. Spread the cocoanut in a thin layer on a flat pan and toast to a delicate brown in the oven and chop coarsely. Cool the dates slightly and roll them in the chopped cocoanut. Serve with hot coffee.

BLONDIE — Somebody's Flighty!

RENO Rendezvous

By LESLIE FORD

I HAVE THE VAGUEST, sickest memory of the rest of that night—of the people who came pouring in through the swinging doors when they heard that cry of mine . . . and chief among them Kaye Gorman herself, in the black lace dress that had made me make that mistake.

She stared at me, her baby face white as death, as if in some way she already saw the incredible significance that this scene was to have before we were through.

"I . . . I thought it was you," I managed to say.

She shook her head—unnecessarily.

"They just haven't got around to me yet," she said. She was trying to be indifferent and cynical, but her face was dreadfully white and her hands shook as she lighted a cigarette.

Colonel Primrose's face was very grim. "All of you go back in there and stay," he said curtly. He looked around. "Buck!"

There was a commotion outside, and Sergt. Buck came violently through the swinging doors. He had two men with him, each by the nape of the neck, like some monstrous Puss-in-Boots moving its kittens.

"Tryin' to sneak out through the kitchen, sir," he said composedly, out of the corner of his mouth.

I stared at them. One was my friend, Whitey, the other Vicki Ray's landlord, Mr. Tucker. Both were shaking and terrified.

"I never done it!" Whitey screamed. "I swear to Jesus I never! I ain't seen her all night! I swear I ain't!"

"Get them out in the other room," Colonel Primrose said. "I am a special investigator—I'm in charge here till the police come. Get somebody at each door, Sergeant. See that nobody leaves and get the name of each person.—You can stay here."

He was looking—rather oddly—at Mr. Tucker when he said that. Mr. Tucker's face was ashy gray around his yellowish mustaches.

The lounge emptied until only Colonel Primrose and I and Mr. Tucker were left. Then I noticed Clem Bonner, behind me by the windows overlooking the Truckee. He was standing as if he had taken root there, the ash hanging intact almost the length of his cigarette.

"What's on your mind, Bonner?" Colonel Primrose said abruptly.

Clem turned slowly, the ash splattering on the gold carpet. "Nothing," he said. He turned again and stood, staring out of the windows into the garish white-and-pink-and-blue night.

WHO DID IT?

I moved over by him as Bill Hogan arrived . . . fear creeping about in my heart like a tiny yellow lizard in an empty cabin in the desert. The coroner was with him. They stood looking down at Vicki for an instant, raised her head, let it fall back, touched her hand. Then they carried her lifeless body from the room.

"She hasn't been dead half an hour," Colonel Primrose said. He looked around. "There must be some other way out of here."

Hogan went to the swinging doors. In a moment Sergeant Buck appeared with one of the waiters, a Swiss named Ferdinand.

"Yes, sir. There's a door there, goes to the kitchen, and that door goes to the powder room."

He pointed to a panel in the wall to the left, and to another across the room behind a tub of palms.

"So anyone could go from this lounge directly to the bar and dining room, or indirectly through the kitchen, or through the powder room?"

"Yes, sir. Of they could go out through the service entrance in the alley."

Mr. Tucker's hands shook violently.

"What are you doing here, Tucker?" Hogan asked.

"Somebody called up one of the ladies at my house . . . I came to see if I could find her . . ."

I don't know why I felt no twings of sympathy for Mr. Tucker. His face was asy-white as he babbled away incoherently, and he was certainly more abject than many of the things I find myself instinctively rising to defend.

Beautiful in death, Vicki's body is carried from the room as her friends stare in horror.

I suppose it was because there was something furtive about him.

"Vicki lived at your place, didn't she?"

Mr. Tucker nodded wretchedly.

Colonel Primrose turned to Buck. "Where was he!"

"In that passage out there, sir. He and this Whitey were fightin' to get ahead of each other at the alley door. I was lookin' after the other bird is how I happened to catch him."

"Take him off to the station," Hogan said curtly. Mr. Tucker's voice rose to a scream as a detective led him away through the panel to the right: "But I wasn't ever out of the passage!"

WHOSE ROPE?

I watched Colonel Primrose looking down at the soft folds of black chantilly lace trailing over the yellow leather seat to the floor. "Find out whose rope that is," I heard Bill Hogan say.

"That's Ben Tavish's—a lot of them were doing tricks with it before the orchestra came in."

Hogan turned to another of his men. "Find out who were doing tricks with it. See how many cowpokes—professionals and gentlemen—were in there. It isn't everybody can throw a rope."

"The rope wasn't thrown," Colonel Primrose said quietly. "Not over the back of this booth. She was sitting here facing the river. You'll probably find she'd had a good deal to drink. Somebody came in with the rope . . ."

He stopped abruptly, staring down at the dead girl, and shrugged. I saw Clem Bonner, still by the windows at the end of the room, move slightly.

"A terrible chance to take . . . but this is a killer who's willing to take terrible chances."

He looked out through the open doors at the bar, where the little group from the Washoe were gathered trying to keep Whitey quiet. I looked for Judy. She and Polly Wagner and a couple of men dressed in Western clothes were sitting at a table in the dining room.

It flashed into my mind that I was very glad I'd burned that unfinished letter. Whatever connection there might be between Judy and Dex Cromwell, there could be none apparent—with that letter burned—between her and the dead girl.

"We'll have a look," Hogan said grimly. He took his atomizer out of its black wooden box, sprayed the glass table top with a gray-green powder, and whistled. The side on which Vicki Ray had sat was covered with prints of many hands. The side near the doors was wiped clean.

"The rope was slipped over her head, jerked tight, looped around the pedestal," Colonel Primrose said. "Her head was drawn down on the seat. She was absolutely helpless. She hadn't a chance in the world, even if she'd been sober. The murderer then coolly anchored the rope end to the table over there on his way out.

"It wouldn't have taken a minute. In fact it was all over—practically—in thirty seconds. Any noise would be drowned by all that clatter outside. The killer then simply went back—through the passage to the alley and through the front door again, or through the kitchen, or through the powder room."

Hogan shook his head. "The powder room's out. A man wouldn't risk getting caught in there."

"No risk for a woman, Hogan."

Hogan's bright blue eyes sharpened. He nodded.

"You've got to consider all the possibilities. That's where you start—finding out who saw who, coming or going through any of these entrances."

He turned to me. "You were sitting facing this room, Mrs. Latham. Did you see anyone come in here, or come out?"

I saw Clem Bonner move again. I knew instantly, of course, what was in his mind . . . and also that there was nothing for it.

A DESPERATE KILLER

"My niece came in here during dinner, and stayed a few minutes," I said, "She certainly didn't have a rope with her. And I doubt if she could tie a knot to save her life."

Hogan grunted. "Didn't need to. Anybody could jerk a noose and loop a rope around a pedestal. Get her in."

He nodded to one of his men. I didn't dare look at Clem.

Judy came swiftly through the doors, her face pale, her eyes steady and unflinching.

"Nobody was in here when I was," she said. "Except that a man—I thought one of the waiters—looked in through some kind of a hole in that wall."

She pointed to the panel opening into the passage to the kitchen and alley.

"You know who it was?"

"I'm not sure. I think it was the man Sergeant Buck brought back. Not Whitey—the other one."

"Vicki wasn't here?"

"No. I was only here a couple of minutes. I went out through the powder room there. Nobody was there but Mrs. de Courcey. I didn't see Vicki at all, not after she came in with you, Colonel Primrose."

Colonel Primrose nodded. "You can go, Mrs. Bonner. Ask Mrs. de Courcey to come in, Buck.—Wait a minute."

He turned to me. "Who is that girl with Judy?"

"That's Polly Wagner," I said.

He nodded to Buck, and in a minute Polly Wagner came in . . . Polly with her charming simple sanity, and the sort of incandescent glow of hope behind her clear eyes that still almost redeems Reno in spite of everything . . . the gambling, and the dope, and the general vulgarity.

"Yes, I saw Judy come out here," she said. "But she wasn't here long. She just came out because she couldn't sit there another minute and have somebody looking like a hungry brook trout across the room, never taking his eyes off her."

She gave Clem a quick amused glance.

"I mean, she couldn't possibly, because—odd as it may seem—she's really perfectly mad about him."

"But that's not what you're interested in, is it. I know she was just here a minute or so. And I wasn't even paying the least attention to anybody else. The man I was talking to has fifteen thousand sheep up on the range, and we were talking about them, and he's down here to get a doctor to take up with him tomorrow because his Basque herder's got a sick wife—

"The only only odd thing I noticed was that Vicki—I don't know her as well as people who live in town do—seemed sort of excited . . . like people do when they're . . . oh, taking a ski jump and aren't sure whether they're going to land or break their necks."

Colonel Primrose nodded, looking rather curiously at her. "I . . . thought so, too," he said. "All right, Mrs. Wagner." He nodded to Buck.

Repay in monthly installments that fit your budget

YOU, like most employed people, probably find that you must sometimes borrow to meet emergencies. If you need only a few dollars for a short time, you get a loan from a friend or relative.

But when you need $50, $100 or $200 you doubtless hesitate to ask others to advance money to you. That's when Household Finance can help you. For Household Finance has a special loan plan for employed men and women faced with urgent money problems.

No endorsers required

To borrow at a bank requires collateral. Or you must ask friends or fellow-workers to endorse your note—to act as guarantors in case you are unable to repay your loan. The Household plan spares you this embarrassment.

When you borrow at Household you don't have to ask outsiders to sign your note. We ask for no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. Loans are made on furniture, car or note. No credit inquiries are made of friends or relatives. You get the money you need privately and promptly.

Repay monthly

You repay your loan in convenient monthly installments. Suppose you need $100. Twelve monthly installments of $9.75 each, for instance, will repay your loan in full. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $5.41 per month for 20 months will repay a $100 loan.

Find the amount of cash you need in the first column of the loan table. Then read across, picking out the monthly payment which fits your budget. See how you can make very small payments if you wish. Or you can pay larger installments and pay up sooner. Note that a $100 loan repaid in four monthly installments, for instance, costs only $6.32.

Ask for information—no obligation

Last year more than 600,000 men and women found the Household Finance Loan Plan a simple, dignified solution to their emergency money problems. In case of sickness or unemployment Household shows the borrower every consideration. Last year Household foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 10,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Study the loan and payment table. Then phone or visit us for further information without obligation.

Advance payment reduces the cost of your loan proportionately, since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Payments are calculated at Household's rate of 2½% per month, which is less than the maximum permitted by the Small Loan Law, Massachusetts 2½.

We guarantee the total amount figured by using this table to be the full amount you will pay, when payments are made on schedule. You will pay less if you pay your loan ahead of schedule.

AUSTEN LAKE

Roughouse Ladies Come to the Garden

TONIGHT, BY THE PALE MOONLIGHT, the pungent perfume of moist earth, stable sweepings, harness oil, perspiration and leather will begin to fill the Boston Garden—the familiar odor of the rodeo. Slink-hipped men in tight pants, embroidered boots and wide-brimmed hats will swap banter with pint-sized cow-girls — quaint people from the far corners of our national crazy-quilt rawhide gentry with parenthetical legs bent from squeezing the barrel-shaped bellies of calico broncs, hard-shell ladies who think nothing of splintering their bones, sun-bitten men who talk the lazy lingo of the Texas plains.

AUSTEN LAKE.

By noon tomorrow the arena floor will be six inches under hard-packed loam, 900 tons of it. By Wednesday night mustard-colored "jugheads" will come "sunfishing" out of the saddle chutes, or frightened rodeo calves will be caught by the heels, or adult cows with hatrack horns be wrestled and milked against time.

One of the pretty ladies of the rodeo is Miss Tad Lucas, a luscious miss made of fiddle-gut, piano wire and tubular steel who risks unhooking her spine on one of the hurricane horses. Tad is a soft-spoken lass no larger than a standard-sized horse jockey who would look good in a party frock at a Harvard supper dance.

When I saw Miss Tad last she was suffering from a knee dislocation, having the hinge wound with a flannel bandage soaked in Sloan's horse linament. A webbing of purple scar tissue runs across her left elbow. She has been kicked unconscious by a cow, rolled under a 600-pound mustang, sprung her joints against corral fences and busted her charming ribs.

* * *

They Earn Their Money Hard

RODEO MONEY IS THE WAGES OF PAIN for the cow cuties like Tad, Alice Greenough, Rose Breedon, Clair Thompson, Myrtle Goodrich, Marjie Greenough and a half-dozen others who risk their fascinating skeletons in a commercialized roughhouse which would make the job of a varsity football player look like tea at the Ritz. Just the other day Gene Creed was shipped home from New York with a compound fracture of the fibula and the prospect of winter in a plaster cast.

Not that the cow-ladies, as I have found them, are a special breed of hairbreadth hellions with re-enforced frames, rubber-insulated nerves and a passion for the sensation of train wreck.

They are just normal females victimized by environment. According to Miss Lucas any Eastern party gal of the organdy, fluff and lipstick type, might have been a bronc buster if born in the rugged, leathery atmosphere of a daddy-owned stock ranch, cradled in a saddle, teethed on a cinch buckle and nursed on cooked cow.

For life on the range is what you make it. The tea cozy, parlor virtues of city life hold no charms for the prairie daughters like Alice and Marjie Greenough. Evenings are spent in the corduroy company of plain people, singing simple songs to the wail of a fiddle, watching the sun set and after that the stars. The days pass in shagging the dogies, dipping tick-infested steers, hunting strays and eating chuck wagon grub.

"Soooo," I remember Miss Lucas saying, as simply as though totalling a restaurant check, "Ah tuk-tu ridin' ro-day-o."

Ropers Rodeo Aristocrats

WITH GOOD LUCK IN AVOIDING CRACKUPS an upperflight cow-cuddle like Massachusetts-born Claire Thompson may win between $2000 and $3000 during a season of riding the hoodlum hosses, out of which she must pay her hotelage, haulage and roughage on clothes, not to mention medical bills. Busted bones and the after effect of jouncing her jibiets are her hard luck, on the promoters's theory that if a lady is daffy enough to risk her delicate entrails in such demented endeavor she deserves a later life of cramps and spinal stoops. So no sympathy is wasted and most rodeo owners do not encourage the distaff side to follow the shows.

Among the rodeo men roping is the sign of a true ranger, because the art of spinning the noose over a cow's kicking heels is acquired, like the fundamentals of baseball, at an early boyhood age or not at all. Bronc riding and bulldogging, on the other hand, are regarded as circus acrobatics requiring only a crude muscularity, nerve and the rudiments of horsemanship. A bulldogger, like a mat wrestler, must be tough and able to take it. But the genuine puncher sniffs a scornful sniff at the bulk of the steer "wrestlers," most of whom, they say, would be as helpless as hayfarmers in the specialized routine of a roundup.

LIKE POLO PLAYERS THE BULLDOGGERS and calf ropers carry their own strings of ponies, each carefully schooled in the knack of ducking out from under and swerving away as their masters dive from the saddle for the cow's horns or dismount in that bandy-legged gallop to tie a maverick's hoofs. Time is money here and a smart pony is worth his weight in gold dollars, $500 to $1000 each.

And like college football the rules of bronc riding are rigid. No spasmodic snatching for the saddle horn, no protective padding to soften the falls, no smacking the hosses flank with a hat, no steadying of the heels against the animal's ribs, no wrapping of the reins around the fist. One hand must be waved free and gracefully, the spurs must "scratch" the beast's flank at every leap, and, after the fashion of judging figure skating for grace, rhythm and curlicues, the riders are rated on the form of their execution and the rhythmic way they ride the waves.

BRUINS RIDE, FLY HERE TO FACE SHORE'S TEAM

HERE SO SOON—Milt Schmidt and Jack Crawford hop back into hockey picture tonight as Bruins play Springfield at Garden. And football's just swinging into second half of season.

Boston's World Champion Bruins invaded Boston from North and South today for their first exhibition game of season here tonight with Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians at the Garden.

The body of the squad detrained at Back Bay Station at 8:30 this morning, and Manager Art Ross, Capt. Dit Clapper, Frankie Brimsek, Bobby Bauer and teammate-foe Eddie Shore flew in from Montreal and swooped down on the East Boston airport at noon.

All came from the Babe Siebert benefit game in Montreal last night.

Shore, for the first time in Boston history, will be in enemy livery tonight, starting at right defense for his team but after Dec 15 he will play home games for the Bruins.

He will be leading a strong team against the Bruins tonight, for the Indians defeated Providence Reds 5 to 3 last night and last week defeated Les Canadiens, 3 to 0, aided immeasurably by Shore's checking.

Bruins and Indians play the second game of their series tomorrow night at the Garden. Then the Bears head for Toronto, where they open the National League season with the Bruins Saturday.

Harlow to Revamp Harvard Backfield

Radical changes in the backfield will mark Harvard's preparation for the Princeton game this week. The Dartmouth debacle disclosed two fundamental weaknesses in the Crimson offensive, passing and plunging.

There was no one on the Harvard end of the field who could throw the ball with enough accuracy and restraint to make reception possible, and lack of a hard driving bucking back who can pick up a yard or two under any conditions, deprived the team of a serious threat in the center of the line. These limitations made it easy for Dartmouth to spread out and stop the Harvards. In speaking of the passing Harlow declared:

"There is a lot of difference between a passer and a heaver, and with Capt. Macdonald out we haven't a really good passer left."

HELMAN MAY BREAK IN

Nevertheless, when the final whistle blew Saturday, Helman had his helmet on and was on the field waiting to report to the referee. If passing doesn't develop this week in the first team backfield, he probably will see service against Princeton.

In an attempt to strengthen the above weaknesses, Harlow may move George Heiden, his hardest runner, from wing to bucking back, in place of Charlie Spreyer who could go to tailback as Macdonald's alternate.

Fran Lee, who has been doing some good running from tailback, might work with Joe Gardella at wingback.

In this way, Spreyer, who now rates Lee as a passer, would be in a better position tothrow the ball, and since Macdonald will need some time to get in shape after his injury, he would have a capable man to relieve him.

Heiden, a 180-pounder from Milwaukee, is the only head-down driver on the team who is also good enough on defense to be moved to this position. He may well fill the Harvard bill.

HALLETT AT TACKLE

The line that faces the Tigers probably will be the same one that greeted the Green, with the exception of left tackle.

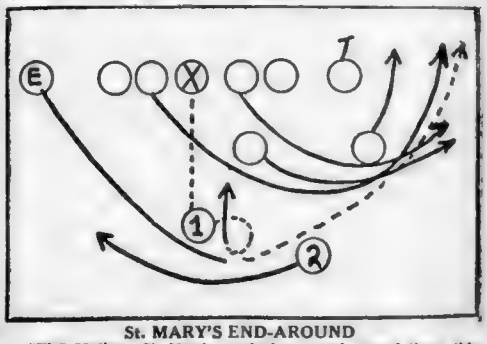
In spite of Vern (Mash) Miller's admitted improvement as a tackler, he still lacks the blocking finesse that makes yards for the home-towners.

If Mose Hallett, senior tackle, who was slated to begin against Dartmouth until a practice injury set him back a week, is off the doctor's list he probably will get the opening call at "Old Nassau."

Siebert Game Nets $15,000

MONTREAL, Oct. 30 (AP)—Proceeds of the Babe Siebert memorial hockey game will total about $15,000 when all returns are in, sponsors announced today.

About 6000 spectators witnessed the match last night between Les Canadiens and the National Hockey League all-star outfit, but many private donations swelled the fund.



St. MARY'S END-AROUND

"Slip" Madigan, St. Mary's coach, has scored several times this season on this end-around play, similar to that used by Elmer Layden at Notre Dame last year, too. The ball goes on a direct pass from center to Back No. 1, who spins and hands it to the end (E) after faking to No. 2 as though on a reverse. The end continues to the right, with blocking and interference provided by the guards and other backs.

HOW TO BLOCK—Narick of Pittsburgh gains 10 yards against Fordham at Polo Grounds, aided by teammate's fine block. Pitt led, 13-6, at halftime, but Rams came back in final period to win, 27-13.

TOUCHDOWN—Strausbaugh, Ohio State's plunging star, flings himself over last white line to score team's first touchdown against Cornell. Nothing daunted, Ithacans fought back and ultimately triumphed, 23-14.

B. C. Profits Little By Beating Saints

After last week's display of what good grid machines are made of, and a resultant 28-0 victory over the not so strong St. Anselm Hawks, Frank Leahy and his Boston College gridmen today get down to the serious business of preparing for the intersectional clash they have on the docket this week-end with Auburn.

Lightnin' Lou Montgomery will again be sidelined by that "southern clause," and accordingly, mentor Leahy will watch carefully the practice displays of his other right halfback, Senior Vito Ananis and Sophomore Frank Maznicki.

GOOD SUBS FOR LOU

If Ananis and Maznicki can come up with as good a performance as each showed last Saturday, the Eagle coach will have no worry.

Vito plugged the first touchdown on a 31 yard end sweep, the very same play which gave Boston College its initial score in the ern clause," and accordingly, Men-12 yard pass from Bob Jauron for the third Eagle score, besides chalking up lots of unrecorded yardage.

Lou Kidhardt and Capt. Ernie Schwotzer, both of whom were slightly injured in the third period, may not practice today, but the injured veterans Joe Manzo, Dick Harrison, John Yauckoes and Ed Cowhig are expected to return to action.

If the ankle Kidhardt sprained after playing two sensational games is at all serious, and Manzo and Yauckoes, erstwhile first stringers, are not in shape by the end of the week, Boston College will be in a bad way for tackle timber. However, such is not expected.

VETERANS RETURN

Harrison and Cowhig, also casualties of the twisted knee route, are just about ready to return to duty. Of the two, Cowhig is the more seriously affected. For a while it appeared that Harrison might be out for the season. Last week, however, Dick showed definite signs of improving, and toward the end of the week donned a uniform for a light workout.

Should Harrison and Cowhig report in shape both will have a hard job getting back their previous rating.

Alex Lukachik, automatic place kicker who returned to form Saturday with three for three, has been playing such a great wing game on the "A" line, that the loss of Harrison has hardly been noticed, while at quarterback Dave Lucey's smart field generalship in the St. Anselm contest lifted him into the team "B" backfield.

A STING OF TOUGH ONES

Coach Leahy feels that the Eagles were not aided in their preparation for the "toughies" on the schedule, which start coming with Auburn this week, by the defensive play of St. Anselm.

The Eagle coach, while admiring the courage of the battling Hawks, was inclined to agree with Cleo O'Connell, St. Anselm head mentor, when the latter went on record with the statement that a poor schedule has not benefited my boys' tackling ability.

After coming back last week with a great performance against Georgia Tech, which they lost to 7-6 in the dying moments of a rugged contest, Auburn will be a mighty hombre at Fenway Park on Nov. 4.

ROOM AND BOARD By Eugene Ahern

JASPERS WORRY HANLEY

For a green team, Boston University has been staggering along in nice fashion.

Mistakes have been many, yet despite that, the cold records show that the Hanleymen have come through with three victories in four games, which, in these days, is great football.

MISTAKES COSTLY

In fact, the Western Reserve game was the only clash in which mistakes proved costly, but with a little experience the Terriers would have taken that game handily, and would be going into the Manhattan game at National League Field undefeated next Saturday afternoon.

This Manhattan game looms as the toughest the Terriers have had to face and the Jaspers may turn out to be the strongest foe the Scarlet and White will meet this year.

JASPERS SHOW GREATEST

The New York team played rings around the undefeated Duquesne eleven, conquerers of Pitt, only to lose 7 to 0 after gaining more than twice as much ground, and chalking up 20 first downs to six for the Dukes.

Two weeks ago the Jaspers downed Auburn, the great southern team that faces Boston College Saturday. By this victory Manhattan established itself as one of the best teams in the east.

Because of this might of Manhattan, Coach Pat Hanley is no little concerned. He realizes that his club cannot make mistakes and win.

Victory Flees Huskies' Grasp

Northeastern's eleven will go down in Huskies' history as the 'hard luck club of 1939."

With five games already played, the Huskies will still be seeking their first victory when they play Springfield next Saturday.

Yet, with any kind of luck they would have suffered only one loss. Injuries and bad breaks just about wrecked the charges of Jimmy Dunn.

They lost their opener to St Anselm, a much superior team, but the following week injuries forced the Huskies to use a green club and they dropped a decision to New Hampshire. Bates came next and the Bobcats were top heavy favorites but a blocked kick gave them a 10 to 6 victory.

Northeastern then bounded back to tie Tufts, and last Saturday they were edged by Rhode Island 7 to 6. The Rams were a 3 to 1 choice to win, yet the narrow margin of that extra point sent the Huskies down to defeat.

Hoping that hard luck of this sort is not going to last forever, Coach Jimmy Dunn starts preparing for Springfield today with the idea of bringing his charges along rapidly enough for them to come through with their first victory

The Monday Morning Quarterback

By BILL GRIMES

As the weeks click off, it becomes more and more apparent that the Boston College-Holy Cross game, which will be played at Fenway Park on Dec. 2, will prove one of the greatest tussles ever staged by elevens representing these Jesuit institutions.

The Crusaders have the call over the Eagles.

Coach Joe Sheeketski has almost an over-abundance of football material at Mt. St. James. Frank Leahy is in the process of developing the Notre system at the Heights. Holy Cross is four and five, yes, and even in places, six, deep. Boston College cannot go down more than three, with two exceptions.

After the Manhattan game, Joe Sheeketski recognized the fact that Holy Cross had to resort to a running attack, if it was to capitalize on its most effective weapon. Unfortunately, he did not have time to revamp his machine before the L. S. U. game but the Crusaders hit their stride against the University of Georgia, Brown and Colgate.

COULDN'T BE BEATEN

Before the Colgate game on Saturday, Joe Sheeketski was a trifle nervous. He suspected that the Red Raiders would open up with some unorthodox football. But, he brightened up when queried concerning the Georgia game.

"I wouldn't say that we'd have beaten any college club in the country the day we played Georgia," declared the popular Holy Cross mentor. "But, I know that no club would have beaten us. We were going that day. You could hear the blocking across the Tibby."

There's so much great material at the "Cross" that with the exception of the L. S. U. game, Joe Sheeketski has started four sophomores.

It requires considerable courage to open against such clubs as Manhattan, Georgia, Brown and Colgate with sophomores at both tackle berths, and two more in the backfield, one of whom, Frankie Saba, is the signal caller.

BOSTON COLLEGE BUILDING

Sheeketski is polishing his offense and defense. Frank Leahy is building. Both Holy Cross and Boston College show to better advantage weekly.

When December 2 rolls around, barring accidents, particularly to any of the Eagles, Joe Sheeketski and Frank Leahy, who played under the great Knute Rockne, will field two perfectly drilled elevens, which will use the Notre Dame system.

And, regardless of the outcome of the Holy Cross and Boston College games between now and their annual tilt, the Crusaders and the Eagles will draw a capacity crowd to Fenway Park.

✖ ✖ ✖

In every section of the land, football coaches are in their weeping rooms moaning over the mistakes made by sophomores which cost them Saturday's ball game. It's a weekly function in the life of losing coaches.

Sophomores, according to the viewpoints of coaches, are serious liabilities rather than assets. At least, the mentors resort to the sophomore angle to get out from under after defeat.

They realize that an "out" is necessary to appease the alumni and undergraduates of their institutions. And, just as soon as that "character building" excuse begin to display signs of wear, the sophomores were elected.

However, there are two coaches, who today are lauding sophomores to the skies, Namely Adams Walsh, Bowdoin and Wendell Manfield, Bates.

CLOSE DUEL IN MAINE

The Brunswick Polar Bears and the Bobcats of Lewiston are the pacemakers in the race for the Maine State championship because of two sophomores.

Niles Perkins, a 220 pound sophomore tackle, kicked a couple of placement goals to give Bowdoin a 6 to 0 victory over Colby, and Bobby Malone, a second string sophomore fullback who hails from Beverly Farms, intercepted a Maine forward pass late in the fourth quarter and raced 78 yards for the only touchdown scored during the afternoon and a victory for Bates.

Judging from the manner decisions were reached at Brunswick and Lewiston on Saturday, the fight for the Pine Tree State title will be a battle royal, and for the second straight year will probably wind up with two colleges deadlocked.

Two of the "Little Three" teams, Amherst and Williams, were on the wrong side of upsets. The Lord Jeffs were favored to dispose of Wesleyan but the Cardinals took to the air and were awarded a 19 to 14 victory, while the Jumbos of Tufts stopped the Purple 14 to 12.

Williams was not up to wai strength at Medford, nor was it up to standard. John Daly, a former Boston All-Scholastic tackle, when he played for Coach Bill Ohrenberger at E. H. S. was sidelined because of a leg injury and Morgan Batten, formerly of Gov. Dummer Academy who is the sparkplug of the Purple backfield, had too many "cuts" to allow him to make the trip.

Even with Daly and Batten out of the line-up, Williams could have beaten the Jumbos but for eight fumbles, one of which paved the way for a touchdown.

✖ ✖ ✖

Warner Keaney, son of the coach, booted Rhode Island State to another victory. A week ago, "Flip" Keaney kicked a placement goal which gave R. I. S. a 23 to 20 win over Mass. State. On Saturday, his conversion after "Duke" Abbruzzi had scored a touchdown was the deciding point that won over Northeastern.

Due to the fact that "Duke" Abbruzzi, who is one of the country's leading scorers was twice injured and played only a short time, the Rams had trouble with the Huskies.

✖ ✖ ✖

While Middlebury was pinning a 12 to 0 defeat on Norwich to take over the lead in the Green Mountain State championship, Vermont was being shellacked by the University of New Hampshire at Durham.

REDSKINS KNOCKED OFF TOP

Detroit's surprising Lions should know the worst about their national Pro Football title aspirations in another week of battling according to the Associated Press.

The Lions, who are matching the fine play of the Green Bay Packers stride for stride in the National League's western division, engage the title-holding New York Giants in Detroit next Sunday in a pivotal clash.

Detroit, New York and Green Bay all clicked yesterday with well-erned victories. Their three games and the Cleveland-Pittsburgh tilt drew a total of 101,514 spectators.

STOPS BEARS DECISIVELY

Gus Henderson's Lions clipped the Chicago Bears in a manner even more decisive than the 10-0 score indicates. The Lions throttled competely the Bears' vaunted running and passing attack. Chuck Hanneman's 37-yard field goal and Dwight Sloan's 12-yard dash on a spinner accounted for the tallies, a defeat that virtually eliminated the Chicago eleven from the western race.

The Lions now have won five of six games, but face a murderous schedule. After taking on the Giants a week hence they play the Bears again, Cleveland Rams, Washington and Green Bay.

SKINS LOSE FIRST

Green Bay matched Detroit's won-lost record by handing the Redskins their first defeat, 24-14. The Packers outrushed Washington by 49 yards but the Indians gained almost 100 more yards in the air. The victors ran up a 17-7 lead in the first half and both teams added a touchdown in the final quarter.

Washington's defeat left the Giants alone in first place in the Eastern Division. The New Yorkers defeated Brooklyn, 7 to 6, to remain the only undefeated team in the league. Tuffy Leemans scored the touchdown and Ken Strong added the all-important extra point. Ralph Kercheval scored Brooklyn's six points on two field goals from the 47 and 27 yard lines. He tried two others, but both fizzled.

In the day's other game Cleveland and Pittsburgh battled to a 14-14 tie, breaking Pitt's six-game losing streak. Parker Hall, league leading passer, had a bad day, connecting for only one of 13 passes for the Rams. But he contributed one of the touchdowns with an 88-yard run in the first period.

The standings:

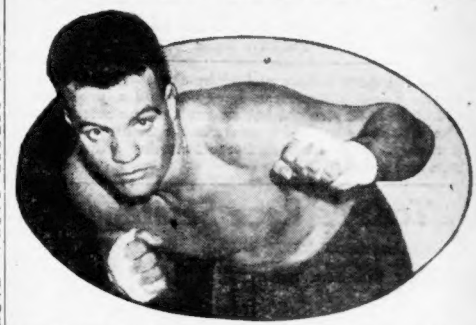
6 N. E. Champs Seek Golden Glove Titles



COME ON DEVINE—Leo Gauthier, Northbridge truck driver, who is anxious to get crack at Pat Devine, N. E. 175-pound king, in Golden Gloves final tonight. They're both in same class.

Six New England amateur boxing champions will display their prowess at the Arena tonight when the Irish-American A. A. stages the Golden Gloves championship finals.

And six New England champions had better look to their reputations for not one of them could be rated a "sure thing," as the form pickers say.

Tony Peppi in the 112's has Eddie De Angelis and Paul Verdiotti to contend with; Johnny Leonard in the 118's is sure of spirited battle if he engages Harold Harris; Al Dutra in the 135's has to hurdle Art Morris and Ray Tynes; Red Priest, the best bet, isn't any too sure of getting by Bill Tordiglione; Joe O'Donnell has Bill Connolly to face in the 160's, and Pat Devine not only was entered against Leo Gauthier, the 1938 sensation, but also Abel Gonsalves, the boy who knocked him kicking two weeks back.

It's an all-star cast in every respect and to top it all, Tony Ferry, the best heavyweight prospect in these parts, comes back to make his 1939 bid for further ring laurels.

Tony's great fight with Herbie Coonan of Rochdale was the highlight of the last indoor season, and fans were hoping today that Ken Jason, Bill Dupre or Joe Zenovich could extend the Hearst all-America king.

Yvon Wrestles In Arena Bout

Yvon Robert, muscular young French-Canadian and former world's heavyweight wrestling champion, will start a new campaign in Boston next Wednesday night when he clashes with Frank Judson of Attleboro in the semi-final of Promoter Paul Bowser's tournament at the Boston Arena.

In the main event Champion Steve (Crusher) Casey will defend the world's title against Marvin Westenberg, former Shadow, while other bouts, already signed, include Danno O'Mahony vs. Lord Albert Mills; Ben Shalom, 250-pound Jewish star, vs. Ed Neuman of New York, and Bobby Managoff, sensational Armenian youngster from Chicago, vs. Ed Cook of New York.

Robert, in all seriousness, thinks he can win back the title, and he thinks he has in Judson nothing more than a stepping stone to bigger things.

Colleges Gain Shade on Pros

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—College football in New York has attracted more people through the turnstiles than the pro sport thus far this season, but the amateur trade has required almost three times as many games to achieve its advantage.

Attendance figures for the first half of the season reveal that a total of 184,406 fans have witnessed 13 college games played in New York and Brooklyn. Five professional contests have lured 144,460 through the musical turnstiles.

Chicago Stays With 'Big Ten'

CHICAGO, Oct 30—The University of Chicago has no intention of withdrawing from the Big Ten, but probably will "modify" its athletic program to avoid as far as possible any more football riots, T. N. Metcalf, athletic director, said today.

Metcalf's comment was occasioned by editorials in the student magazine, "Pulse," which advocated "polite subsidizing of athletes."

Geraghtys Win Over Codmans Protested

The Codman A. A. had lost leadership in the East Division of the Park Department Football League today, but were hopeful of climbing back to the top this week even though they have no game scheduled.

It's this way.

A crowd estimated as between 12,000 and 15,000 packed Roberts Field Dorchester, to see the Codmans play the Geraghtys in the day's feature and most of the gathering stormed onto the playing field in the third period and stayed there for the duration of the game. The Codmans lost, 6-0, but claimed this out.

GAME UNDER PROTEST

Officials, police and even army trucks were used in an attempt to clear the field, but to no avail. The game continued under protest of officials and players alike.

Today, Bill Mullen, Park league director, was to receive reports from the officials of the game and the management of both clubs, and the Codmans were confident that Mullen would declare it no contest and order a replay.

If this occurs, Codmans must win to stay on top for the Mattapan A. A. ran its victory string to five straight as it triumphed over O'Connell Club of South Boston at Walker Field.

St. Lazarus Club narrowly missed defeat by the St. Alphonsus A. A. at Fens Stadium, where they pushed over a last-minute score to come up with a 6-6 tie and in the two games in Roslindale yesterday, St. John's edged the Center Club at Healy Field, 6-0, and, at Fallon Field, Holy Name and Gate of Heaven drew 0-0.

San Jose's Leads College Grid Scoring

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (AP)—Such fearsome gridiron machines as Tennessee, Duquesne, Notre Dame, Oregon State, Michigan and Cornell head the fast-dwindling parade of unbeaten and untied football teams that was reduced to 25 members over the week-end.

Marching along with them are such tiny tots as Slippery Rock, Knox, Colorado Mines and Earlham, all of whom were still among the nation's honored crews as the season swung into the home stretch.

Of the leaders, only Tennessee and the New Britain (Ct.) Teachers boasted unscored-upon records, while in the select list the San Jose State Californians had piled up the most impressive scoring mark—193 points in eight games.

Among those who fell from the inner sanctum by defeats were Penn, Mississippi, Ohio State, and Hillsdale, which suffered its first loss since the 1937 campaign. Tied, and therefore forced to bow out of the picture, were Lenoir-Rhyne, Oberlin and Butler.

The leaders:

R. I. Girl's Tax Charge Stirs Row

KINGSTON, R. I., Oct. 30 (INS)—A tempest brewed on the Rhode Island State College campus today over charges hurled by a co-ed that funds collected from students through the "blanket tax" were allegedly used to subsidize an athlete and to "redeem gold basketballs."

The charges, denied by Head Football Coach Frank W. Keaney, were made by Miss Esther L. Livingston, a senior from Providence.

Miss Livingston told a student meeting that three sums totaling $72 was paid to a student athlete whom she declined to name. The money, she said, was taken from a $2000 fund to which each student contributes $20 for maintenance of extra-curricular activities.

"I don't mind paying the $20," Miss Livingston said, "but I don't want it to go for an athlete who flunks his studies and has to be tutored during the summer, and we pay for that, too."

Moynihan Takes Lead in Grid Poll

Despite the several upsets on collegiate gridirons Saturday, staff members of the Boston American sports department fared well in their selections. Frank Moynihan and Will Connell came up with eight winners in 10 choices, Moynihan picking the correct Notre Dame score; Jack Conway, Austen Lake, Bill Grimes and Huck Finnegan had seven winners; Dave Glueck and Fred Lane six.

Tufts Studies Errors by Film

A battered Tufts eleven, still jubilant by their 14-12 victory over Williams on Saturday, starts preparation for the Brown game at Providence Saturday by analyzing their errors as movies of last Saturday's game are shown this afternoon in the Tufts field house.

A physical examination for each player is the only other duty for the players, and the extent of Wingback Jack West's injury will be determined by Dr. Golden.

Coach Lew Manly had much praise for the heads-up game played by his Tufts eleven, and a short blackboard talk is expected to iron out several errors in assignments which threatened defeat last week.

Indications point to Sophomore Art Harrison being able to play again this week, and his triple-threat playing as wingback should boost the Jumbos strength for the Brown game.

Brockton, Lawrence Set Scholastic Grid Pace

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

Medford high school's state championship balloon sprung a bad leak over at the Everett Stadium Saturday as the Mystics practically abandoned the pennant chase as Brockton and Lawrence took over the pace setting wih decisive victories.

In its first blanking of the season, Medford was forced to swallow its second deadlock, bringing about a surrender of leadership, for the present at least.

The Mystics fought valiantly as they maintained their undefeated record. Their final rating in the title race will depend on the outcome of the future Brockton and Lawrence games. A loss by both, and this would not be impossible, would replace Coach Tom O'Connor's boys in the running.

WITCHES SHOW GREATEST

The Shoe City club had little trouble trouncing Fitchburg as Bernie Lanoue again ran wild but this week's invasion of Salem for the annual meeting with Bill Broderick's Witches will be an entirely different story.

Salem, who has lost only a single contest, and that to Everett, was tied Saturday by Haverhill, but has shown signs of greatness in all of its six games.

Lawrence will carry a seasonal slate of six victories and a tie into the Beverly game Saturday, and will probably come through with its seventh triumph. But after this week Mark Devlin's eleven figures to run into a bit of unexpected trouble.

HAVERHILL STARTED

Haverhill, after a slow start, appears ready to hand the Lawrence club a stiff test before the traditional meeting with Lowell which proved that it was no pop-over against Malden last Saturday.

Unbeaten, but twice tied, Malden will have Somerville to contend with Saturday, while Medford ties up with a high-flying Newton. Coach Owen MacDowell's squad held a highly-favored Rindge Tech team to a 6-6 count, and will undoubtedly prove a tough nut to crack.

The Boston schoolboys title chase may be settled at the Bee Hive Wednesday afternoon, when South Boston and Mechanic Arts clash in a single game. Both teams were rained out of their last scheduled tilts and will be in top condition for this important meeting.

Redskins' Back On Hospital List

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 30 (AP)—Ed Justice, fullback for the Washington Redskins, was confined to a hospital tonight with a "moderately severe" back injury suffered in today's National Pro Football League game with the Green Bay Packers. Justice, carried from the field on a stretcher, will remain in the hospital for several days, it was reported.

Princeton Loses 237-Pound Tackle

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 30 (AP)—Head Football Coach Tad Wieman announced today that Don Herring, 237-pound varsity tackle, was lost to Princeton for the remainder of the season as a result of a dislocated knee, received in the first period of yesterday's game with Brown.
